Changes in Treaty Modify Economic Demands on Enemy Nation

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Correspondent of International News Service.

Paris, May 24.—Additional suggestions for changes in the economic demands on Germany were handed to President Wilson today by Bernard N. Baruch, one of the leading economic experts on the American peace mission.

These are additional to the suggestions made earlier in the week, and it is believed they will go a long way in meeting the objections of the Germans. However, in this connection it is made plain that the concessions deal with the methods of payment rather than reductions.

Members of the economic commission said that the concessions in question simply restored the plan to the original conditions which the Americans proposed at the outset. At that time the Americans were hopelessly in the minority. Since the Germans began their discussions the French economic experts have completely changed their viewpoint.

British Planning to Get German Trade on Rhine

Exclusive Cable to the Universal Service from the London Daily Express.

Cologne, May 23, via London, May 24.—Great Britain is organizing to capture German trade on the Rhine and representatives of seventy firms in the United Kingdom have just formed a British chamber of commerce in this city.

British commercial agents are arriving here steadily. They point out that co-operation even among the competing firms is necessary.

Planning Aero Mail Station for Boston

Plans for an aero mail station in Boston have been discussed by Mayor Peters with government officials. Agents have been in the city for some time endeavoring to locate a suitable landing place.

The Mayor stated that he was in some doubt relative to such a location within a radius of three miles of City Hall. What the government needs, according to the Mayor, is a place as large as Franklin Field. In addition, a cement or concrete maltese cross, imbedded in the ground, would have to be established, to be used as a runway. Also encircling the field, 600 by 600, there would be a circular cement track to act as a beacon for the aviator while flying over the city.

All But Regulars Will Have Sailed by the 12th, Says General March

By International News Service.

Washington, May 24.—The Yanks are now coming out of France so rapidly that all except the regulars will have sailed by June 12, General Peyton C. March, chief of staff, announced today.

To date 1,152,427 troops have embarked for home and the monthly sailings are rapidly increasing. Two records have been made, the general stated, the week ending May 20 seeing 133,193 setting 827 for the home land while for the twenty days ending May 20, the total was 239,629. Since November 11, 1,152,427 have set sail. The transport system is now working so rapidly, General March stated that General Pershing has informed the War Department that nothing can be done to expedite the return of individual men.

It has been th epolicy of the War Department, the chief of staff explained, in cases where a man was urgently needed at home, to designate his return as a casual. Now, however, he will be able to reach home just as quickly by travelling with his unit.

MAY SIGN TREATY BEFORE JUNE 15

Paris, May 24.—The latest guess as to when the peace treaty would be signed is some time between June 10 and June 15. The belief was freely expressed in French official circles today that the Germans would sign the treaty.

YAQUI INDIANS KILL AN AMERICAN

Ryan Coming Back to Launch Irish Propaganda

By International News Service.

Paris, May 24.—Michael J. Ryan of Philadelphia, one of the Irish-American delegates in Paris in the interests of Ireland, sailed for home on the Touraine today to organize a series of mass meetings to demand that President Wilson insist on the recognition of the Irish republic.

Large pressure will be brought to bear in an effort to have Ireland given an opportunity to sign the treaty independent of England. The Irish situation is causing bitter feeling here, and some American officials declare it would be a mistake to inject it into the negotiations when it could be settled under the League of Nations.

U. S. SOLDIER IS HELD CAPTIVE IN CANADA

Houlton, Me., May 24.—What the outcome will be regarding the forcible removal of a returned American soldier from American soil by Canadian officers is being watched with interest. Hugh McGowan, a Canadian by birth, lived in Aroostook County for several years. He had filed his first naturalization papers at Bangor. He did not care to serve in the Canadian army, and when the United States declared war he served with the American forces, entering the service June 21, 1918, in the 42d Infantry and going to Camp Devens and from there overseas.

His parents live at Fairville, N. B. His age at the time of enlisting was twenty-two. Receiving an honorable discharge at Camp Devens, he visited his parents in Canada, and while there he was warned by officials not to leave the country. McGowan decided he would return to his home in Wytopitlock, Aroostook. Canadian officers soon appeared in Aroostook County and took him by force to the Canadian side, where it is claimed he still is confined.

SAILORS IN HEROIC RESCUES

Ship Carried Relatives of Troops on Way to Newport News to Meet Boys

By International News Service.

Baltimore, May 24.—The steamship Virginia, "Queen of the Chesapeake," owned by the Baltimore Steam Packet Company (Old Bay Line), crowded to capacity with relatives of returning soldiers, on their way to Newport News, Va., to greet their home-coming kin, was burned to the water's edge off Smith's Point, at the mouth of the Potomac River, at an early hour today.

Whether there has been loss of life will not be definitely known until a complete list of passengers, numbering between 150 and 200, can be checked up. Several reports, placing the casualties at from one to eleven persons, have been received here, but none of these reports has as yet been confirmed.

A report that three lifeboats from the Virginia capsized also lack confirmation. Men, women and children leaped overboard from the burning vessel and were rescued by sailors of the United States Navy who were passengers on the Virginia.

Doughnut Day Aids "Sallies" in Drive for Fund

"Doughnut Day" in Boston lagging; Lynn lagging; the rest of New England on its way "over the top."

This was the situation today, the sixth in the Salvation Army's drive for its Home Service Fund. All over the city Army leaders, society women and other volunteer workers were busy making and selling doughnuts on the streets. Everyone was pledged to do his or her efforts for Boston, which was woefully behindhand according to the report of Alfred L. Aiken, treasurer, at the opening of "Doughnut Day."

ABINGTON TRAGEDY; 3 HURT

Big Auto Tearing Through Gates Is Hit by Train Speeding to Boston

Abington, May 24.—Two persons were killed and three others injured, two of them seriously, when an automobile containing a party of Brockton people was struck by a train here today.

THE DEAD.

MRS. CLIFFORD A. PACKARD, fifty-one, No. 36 Tremont street, Brockton.

MARION PATTANGALL, nine, No. 38 Market street, Campello.

INJURED SERIOUSLY.

MR. AND MRS. SEWALL PATTANGALL, parents of the dead girl, Brockton Hospital.

INJURED SEVERELY.

CLIFFORD A. PACKARD, husband of dead woman, Brockton Hospital.

The accident occurred just outside the Abington station as the 10.55 express train was leaving for Boston on the New Haven tracks. According to the railroad employees the gates were down at the street crossing when the big car, owned and driven by Mr. Pattangall, came thundering into view.

Apparently the driver lost control of his machine, which contained five people, for it plowed through the gates and into the path of the speeding train. According to Baggage Master George Leavitt, the locomotive picked up the automobile and threw it to one side, overturning the car and pitching the occupants over the railroad. The machine was not badly damaged, owing to some peculiar freak.

Mrs. Packard was instantly killed. She was thrown under the locomotive, which mangled her body. The little girl was struck by the engine, sustaining a fractured skull and multiple injuries from which she died. Her mother and father were seriously injured. Mr. Packard escaped with a broken collarbone and minor hurts.

YORK BLUSHES AT BAKER'S PRAISE

By International News Service.

Washington, May 24.—You are a brave man and a commendable young Yorker, Secretary of War Baker greeting today to Sergeant Alvin C. York of the 82d infantry, who at the head of a detachment of seven men killed twenty Germans, took 132 prisoners and put thirty-six machine guns out of action.

York, who was accompanied by Representative Hull of Tennessee, who was making him the guest of Washington, donned waxed and starched his appearance in the Secretary's tribune. It was obvious that he was more at home on the battlefield than in an office receiving the praise of his chief. Later Representative Hull took the hero to call on Adjutant-General Harris and Secretary of the President Tumulty. This afternoon York appeared in the Speaker's gallery of the House as the guest of Representative Hull. He was received immediately and the members of the House interrupted proceedings rose and applauded vigorously for several minutes.

Under the leadership of Representative Sisson of Tennessee, many of the members of the House to shake hands with the Tennessean.

BOYS FORCED TO SELL LIQUOR TO SAILORS

New York, May 24.—James Cronan, of Monroe street, and Joseph McCarthy, Charles street, Boston, were sentenced at Jefferson Market Court yesterday. McCarthy was given three months and Cronan placed on probation for one year. The boys were caught trying to sell liquor to sailors.

MYSTERY SHIP BRYNHILDA IN PORT

The mystery ship Brynhilda, which dropped out of sight last Winter and was given up as a U-boat victim, arrived in Boston to continuation of 7:00 from J. J. Kennealy of No. 32 High street Malden. The craft suffered no mishap and quite recently the crew did not know she had been given up for lost.

Captain Kennealy was met at the pier by members of his family happy to welcome him back from the sea and was amazed to learn the publicity the ship was given after her disappearance.

Captain Kennealy's relatives had mourned him, and some days which had complimented among the crafts had already been reimbursed by the insurance companies.

The world thought we were lost when our sidecar was picked up outside New York harbor last Fall," said Captain Kennealy. "The boat was full of Irish dirt were carried away which was brought in by coaler so our way into the harbor, and we thought that they had sunk.

"On arriving in South Africa we learned to our surprise that we were thought to be lost and that the insurance on some of our cargo had already been paid. As a matter of fact we had an uneventful trip over and back. The Brynhilda brought back 1,000 bales of South African cotton from Port Elizabeth.

Gowdy Given Great Welcome Back by Ball Fans

Here's to you, Hero Hank! This was Hammering Harry Gowdy's greatest baseball day, a day greater even than those when his big bat knocked the Braves into a world's championship.

This afternoon, at Braves Field, Hero Hank was honored by the fans of Greater Boston and New England. The first big league ball player to enlist; the first to get over to France and into active service, Hank was the honor athlete of a great baseball afternoon.

The thrills and the shivers he might have experienced over there at zero hour, with the Rainbow Division going over the top, were equalled when he stepped out to resume his active career as a Brave catcher.

Hank was on the receiving end of things this afternoon. Not only did he do the catching in the game, but he was the recipient of a flock of tokens that showed in a way just how much this part of the baseball world thinks of what he did for his country and his game.

First and foremost was the big presentation of the gift collected from the fans by the Boston American.

Mayor Peters gave Hero Hank just and now believe the American viewpoint was correct.

Soldiers and Workmen's Council Accept Terms; Condemns Government

London, May 24—The German soldiers and workmen have voted to accept the allies' peace terms, said a Central News dispatch from Copenhagen. A resolution condemning the German government was adopted after a stormy session.

The cablegram did not make it plain whether the resolution to accept the treaty was adopted by the Soldiers' and Workmen's Council of Berlin or by the national organization.

Germany's Decision on the Peace Treaty Is With Bernstorff

Berlin, May 24.—Germany's decision on the peace treaty lie in the hands of Count Johann von Bernstorff, former ambassador to the United States. He is at Spa, Belgium, today, giving final instructions to Count Brockdorff-Rantzau.

With Bernstorff, in his hurried visit to Spa, the official rendezvous, are the two other figures that have been pulling the peace strings from behind the scenes at Wilhelmstrasse, Philip Scheidemann, the Chancellor, and Dr. Eberhard Gerhard Lewy, who unostentatiously slipped into the post of Finance Minister.

These three leaders are to meet the foreign minister for what must be the last personal conference prior to the final decision of "to sign or not to sign."

The opinion of all of Ebert's chief ministers but one have been made pretty well clear—and that exception is Count Rantzau. Some believe that despite his truculent speech at Versailles he now wants to sign, fearing an overthrow, while others think he can no more back down than can his colleagues at Spa.

Incidentally this is the first time that Bernstorff and Dernburg, two men originally slated for the peace delegates, but rejected by America's mission in Paris because of their doings in the United States, have ventured out in the open as pilots of the German "peace ship."

Dernburg, before leaving for Spa, took occasion to remove all doubts as to his position. He said:

"We determinedly refuse to sign the present treaty. In this opinion the government is unanimous. If the allies do not modify the terms let them run Germany."

Agreement on Fiume Near; Will Probably Be Made a Free City

By International News Service.

Paris, May 24.—Final settlement of the rival Italian and Jugo-Slav territorial claims on the Adriatic will not be reached before the middle of next week, it was learned from an authoritative source today.

Progress is being made towards a solution that will satisfy all parties, but it has not yet been reached by the conferees will make Fiume a free city under the League of Nations and confer upon Fiume the same regime as applied to the Saar Valley.

The French intend to establish a final effort to retain, in some measure, Italy's preponderance at Fiume by having Italian diplomatic and consular representatives abroad look after the interests of Fiume even though it is made a free city.

A canvass of the peace delegates leads to the belief that the plan for a free city will eventually be adopted, but Signor Orlando has expressed his disapproval of the proposal to have the League of Nations supervise the administration of Fiume's affairs. He desires the city and port to have full sovereignty in themselves.

In connection with the same suggestion was the demand that the whole of the Istrian Peninsula be granted to Italy.

In the earlier stages of the negotiations President Wilson favored a frontier between Italy and Jugo-Slavia immediately northward from the Gulf of Quarnero. When Premier Orlando returned from Rome he objected that such a frontier would leave Italian nationals in Jugo-Slav territory. He therefore proposed that the border follow a line laid down in the Pact of London running northward from Volosca, which is only a few kilometers from Fiume.

Colonel E. M. House has been representing the United States in these negotiations. When the proposals are crystallized and the situation clears the plan will be presented to President Wilson for his approval.

It is now virtually certain that the big island of the Adriatic off Fiume will go to Jugo-Slavia and only a few smaller islands to the south, such as Lissa and Unie, will be given to Italy.

On the Dalmatian coast Italy will receive Zara and Sebenico, and will be granted a port on Lissa Island.

folk at 5.30 o'clock last night, and hailing the ferry passing that city carried a full cargo of freight. The property loss will be very heavy.

The fire, the cause of which has not yet been determined, started about 12:30 a. m. and, burning fiercely spread rapidly, until soon the entire vessel was almost enveloped by flames. Captain W. G. Lane, commander of the Virginia, was in his cabin when the blaze was discovered. He ran on deck half dressed and took charge of the work of rescue. He was lasts to leave the burning ship. He said he did not see any one drown.

The survivors of the Virginia were rescued by the steamer Florida, a sister ship, bound from Norfolk to Baltimore. The City of Norfolk and the City of Annapolis also assisted in the rescue.

It is known that a number of the men of the crew of the Virginia were either burned or otherwise injured when they were jumped on by passengers attempting to leave the burning ship. The passengers lost all their personal belongings. While the fire was burning fiercely heroic rescues were made by Lieutenant-Commander George V. Dawes, U. S. N. of Crisfield, Md., and a party of regular United States Navy enlisted men. The latter being Leroy Simpson, of Norwich, Ct., and George Roy, of New Haven, members of the crew of the U. S. S. New York. The sailors gave graphic descriptions of the fire and the attending rescues.

MAN SENTENCED TO LIVE IN PITTSFIELD

Providence, May 24—Patrick O'Donnell was sentenced to Pittsfield, Mass., for an indefinite period by Judge Gorham in Sixth District Court. The unusual sentence was imposed after O'Donnell's wife testified that he was drinking heavily and beat her with regularity and enthusiasm.

O'Donnell has relatives in Pittsfield, and Judge Gorham thought that in a new environment and away from his Providence friends he might reform.

REPORT REDS ARE QUITTING MOSCOW

Copenhagen, May 24.—Bolshevik troops have begun to evacuate Moscow, according to information received here today. Soviet and other government archives are being moved to Kiev, it was said. The situation for the Bolsheviki reigns is described as "desperate." Thousands of suspected counter-revolutionists are being arrested in Petrograd and Moscow.

WAGE INCREASE AT SLATER MILLS

Webster, May 24—Wage increases ranging from 5 to 15 per cent. are to be granted to the 2,500 operatives of the S. Slater & Sons, Inc., mills here, according to posted notices. The lower paid employes will get the larger increase.

"Goodby, Boston—Hello, Lawrence!"

"Twas the simple cheer of almost fifty children belonging to the victorious Lawrence mill strikers, on their way back home after six weeks in this city.

When they came they had clothing tattered and torn and were undefed. The Lithuanian Workmen's Association of No. 31 Dudley street distributed them among the homes of its members. There they received the proper clothing and regular meals.

The organization has about 200 members and among them 150 families of strikers' families were taken care of. "They were determined that the fight be won, but this could not be accomplished with hungry children," declared Leo Robbins of the Lawrence Strike Committee, in charge of returning the children to their homes. "The parents could manage if young themselves if only their young ones were provided with proper care. This organization volunteered to take a group and when a favorable wage made, they called for 147."

He paid high tribute to the organization. "No one can safely say what the outcome might have been had these children remained in Lawrence. Brockton and other cities have done the same thing."

Another haul-load will leave the club headquarters at Dudley street Sunday afternoon and Monday.

STRIKE PARLEY AT NEW BEDFORD FAILS

New Bedford, May 24—There is a deadlock in the strike situation here, and indications are that the strike is spreading. A conference between the manufacturers and the engineers did not succeed in bringing matters any nearer a settlement. It is expected that Monday will see every one of the mills closed. If this is true, the unemployed here will number 40,000. Local manufacturers plan to refer the strike to the National Association of Textile Manufacturers in Boston.

COSTA RICA BOMB BLAME IS PLACED

Washington, May 24.—The explosion of a bomb in the American Legation of Costa Rica was the work of an enemy of the Tinoco government who desired to precipitate strained relations between that country and the United States, Dr. Carlos Lara, confidential agent in Washington of the Costa Rican government, today told the State Department. "There was practically no damage done, but my government will spare no effort to see guilty of this dastardly act and apply quickly the merited punishment," Dr. Lara stated.

U. S. MAY ARRANGE LOAN FOR GERMANY

London, May 24—A commission of American financiers is en route to arrange a loan to Germany, according to information secured from an authoritative Philip Scheidemann and Count von Brockdorff, former German Ambassador to the United States, have gone to Spa to confer with Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation.

SWISS WILL BAR BOLSHEVIST AGENTS

Geneva, May 24—The Swiss government has decided to prevent the entrance of Bolshevik revolutionists into this country to avoid straining relations with the entente, it was learned today. The Swiss have a knotty problem on their hands with 30,000 Germans and 20,000 Austrians seeking to live here.

Rapids at Clinton From Wachusett Overflow

Clinton, May 24—Three hundred million gallons of water are to be let out of the big storage basin of the metropolitan water system through the Wachusett dam, beginning tomorrow. The waste of this enormous quantity of water has been made necessary by the unusually high rainfall, which so far this year is over six inches in excess of last year at the same period. The water is now in the storage basin at an elevation of 350.93 feet above the Boston base, being nearly a foot over its normal maximum.

It is expected that a great crowd will be on hand tomorrow to watch the spectacle, which is one of unusual beauty. The water is released over the spillway and runs through a channel cut in the solid rock, dropping 100 feet in a distance of 700 feet.

REWARD FOR RETURN OF KIDNAPED BOY

West Brighton, May 24—A reward of $300 has been offered by the State police for the finding or the recovery of four-year-old Russell Everett Smith, who was spirited away from his home on the Providence turnpike April 12 last. An automobile was parked near the boy's home for hours the day he disappeared, but the authorities do not even know how the machine left town. The child's mother suspects a former husband, who objected to her marrying again.

TUNING UP FOR NEW CROSS SEA FIGHT

Harbor Grace, N. F., May 24—An attempt to fly across seas in the Handley-Page airplane being assembled here is certain before the next full moon, says Lieutenant-Colonel E. W. Sheehan, engineer in charge.

Tests are being made of the emergency wireless apparatus, and experts declare Admiral Kerr will be able to report position and trouble should the seaplane be forced into the water.

its quota of $400,000. This meant that for the three remaining days of the drive—today, tomorrow and Monday—the city must raise $195,122, or $65,041 a day.

BOSTON IS FAILING.

Otherwise, leaders of the campaign pointed out, Boston has failed—failed not only the Salvation Army, but the returned soldiers who are bending every effort to aid in the drive.

"Unless Boston goes over the top," said Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole, who is in charge of the drive, "she has failed to show her appreciation of the Y. D. men."

The rest of New England, it was reported, is well on its way to victory and the $2,000,000 quota. Many towns and cities passed their quotas during the first few hours of the drive, and many "oversubscribed the amount originally set. Officials at headquarters expressed themselves as especially gratified with the showing of the smaller towns.

Meanwhile, "Doughnut Day" proved such a success that officials were hopeful that returns would show a marked gain in total subscriptions. The downtown district was one big kitchen.

DOUGHNUTS OF ALL KINDS.

Doughnuts—plain ordinary doughnuts, crisp and browned with a hole in the middle, such doughnuts as won immortal fame for the Salvation Army overseas, such doughnuts as the army's lassies made under fire in France for the Y. D. men and carried under fire to those men in the front line trenches—filled Boston.

There were doughnuts already made; there were doughnuts being made.

DOUGHNUT DAY BOOMS DRIVE FOR 'SALLIES'

"Dr." Matthews and "Ace" Dawson Sought in Vain by U. S. Authorities

The removal of all marks of identification from the clothing of "Dr." A. Sydney Matthews and "Ace" A. Clarence Dawson has become known, following the disappearance of the promoters of "The League of American Patriots, Inc.," and "The National Touring Club of America." They left Boston on May 16. The Federal authorities have been unable to locate them after unremitting search.

At the home of Mrs. Helen M. Guibord at No. 157 Peterboro street, Fenway, where Matthews and Dawson had rooms, it was learned that the two left several articles of clothing and a high grade wardrobe trunk.

"All laundry marks and tailors' labels were either torn from the garments or obliterated," according to Mrs. Guibord, who got Matthews and Dawson as lodgers through an advertisement in a local paper.

Mrs. Guibord admitted that she had "suspicions" concerning the pair following their inability to furnish her with satisfactory references. "But they paid me their board in advance and appeared quiet, respectable men of business, so I took them in," she said.

"When they did not come home to supper on Friday night, and failed to notify me that they would be unable to keep their appointment for supper, my suspicions were aroused," declared Mrs. Guibord. "It was then I began to wonder concerning the reports I had read in the paper about them.

"But they never showed up after that. I examined their effects to see if they had left anything, and discovered that every suit and article of clothing in their rooms had been mutilated by having the labels and laundry marks torn out of them."

Mrs. Guibord said that Matthews and Dawson owed her a week's notice before vacating their rooms, and that she should take steps to recure compensation for her loss by the sale of the property left behind them.

Several creditors of the missing "partners" today viewed the empty suite of the dual "League" in the Walker building only to find the doors locked and the place deserted.

Several hundred dollars' worth of valuable mahogany office furniture owned by Matthews and Dawson has been attached for debts incurred by the "League."

WIRE SERVICE POOR, SAYS BROOKLINE MAN

G. H. Eddy of No. 107 Colbourne Crescent, Brookline, writes the Boston American protesting the service given by the Western Union Telegraph Company, which he says is "consistently rotten." He cites a specific instance, saying that a telegram paid for in Hartford, Conn., last Saturday night was not delivered at his home until Sunday afternoon, and that after payment of an additional sixteen cents, which he cannot account for, Superintendent Charles Lane of the Western Union said that the charge of sixteen cents was for fare of the messenger boy. He will make a complete investigation of the case.

BUILD MAGAZINES FAR UNDER GROUND

Newport, R. I., May 24.—The contract for building the bomb proof magazines on Gould Island, an annex of the Torpedo Station, completed by Captain Martin E. Trench, having been awarded, the work of excavating will be started next week. The magazines are to be well underground that in case of an explosion it would not give Newport any serious shock.

ALLIES ARRANGE NEW TRADE ROUTES

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service from the London Daily Express.

Brussels, May 24.—This city is to be made the headquarters of the International Institute of Commerce, it was learned today. The institute is made up of representatives of the various allied powers. An international trade route is to be established from Antwerp to Venice, Trieste, Fiume, Agram, Bucharest and Odessa. It will not cross either Germany nor Austria. The Orient Express, which formerly ran between Berlin and Constantinople, will now cross Europe by way of Italy and Jugo-Slavia, with London and Paris connections.

France Must Not Lag on Suffrage, Says Viviani

By RENE VIVIANI,
Former Premier of France.

Exclusive Cable to the International News Service From the Petit Journal, Paris.

Paris, May 24.—Now that the Chamber of Deputies has voted in favor of woman suffrage the Senate is about to take up the measure. France lags far behind on this question, and it will be a disgrace to the republic if we wait until Ecuador or some other such small nation grants votes to women before we step into line.

I sincerely hope this bill is not rejected. Rhetorical homage will no longer satisfy women. They are entitled to vote for an infinite variety of reasons, particularly now when grievous war taxation confronts them. The difficulties are great in paying taxes, keeping the home together and raising a family on the small margin the most people have.

BIG WELLESLEY WELCOME TO SOLDIERS

Business Closes for Parade; Addresses, Singing and Dinner to the Boys

This was Wellesley's "Big Day." The entire town turned out to give an official "welcome home" to its soldiers, of whom 250 out of the 324 who entered the service have already returned.

The town was gay with flags and bunting, and distinguished officers of the 26th Division were on hand as speakers and guests of honor.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the Northeastern Department; Colonel George W. Bunnell of the 101st Engineers, Colonel Edward L. Logan of the 101st Infantry, and Chaplain Lyman Rollins were guests at luncheon of the Soldiers' Welfare Committee.

Early in the afternoon these officers, with Selectmen, held a reception in the Town Hall to soldiers and their relatives and veterans of the Civil War, after which a parade formed. All business was suspended from 2 p. m. and all business men were prominent in the celebration.

The parade was led by Judge Harriah A. Plympton, formerly of the Board of Selectmen, and the various army officers, all of whom, John T. Germain, chairman of the selectmen, read the city of Wellesley welcome, engraved on parchment, a copy of which was presented to each soldier.

The reception line was led by Wellesley College and Dana Hall girls and pupils of the Academy of the Assumption. This was followed by an entertainment in the evening.

One mother was made happy by General Clarence R. Edwards, who was guest of honor at the town's celebration. Private Harold F. Weeks of the 101st Infantry, now attached to the War Risk Insurance Department, was denied permission by the commanding officer to return home for the festivities, on account of pressure of work at the office. On learning of the circumstances, General Edwards gave a special order that the young man be released for the occasion. The proud mother was able to "hold her own" with the marchers whose boys marched in the parade.

PROVIDENCE SALOON ROBBED; MAN SHOT

Providence, R. I., May 24—Two holdup men, entering the saloon of John H. Cuff, robbed the till of $100 and shot, probably fatally, Konstanty Cibulski, forty-five. Cibulski was a patron. He entered with a companion to find the other patrons standing with their hands up and the thieves just completing their work. The newcomers were given the order, "Hands up!" but Cibulski attempted to escape through a side door. He was shot in the back and taken to Rhode Island Hospital. The thugs escaped.

OPEN NEW ARMOUR BRANCH ON MONDAY

Many guests will attend the opening on Monday of Armour & Company's new branch house at No. 199 Berkeley street. The building has just been completed, and is among the best equipped of its kind in the world. One of the features is the boiler room, a modern cooler for pickled meats and a large barreled pork and beef room. The department contains the refrigerator plant, freezers and the cut beef department. On the first floor and the sanitary beef cooler with white enameled tile walls, also the display rooms, smoked meat room and shipping department. The second floor contains the offices and cold storage rooms for lard, oil and cheese. The smoke houses, smoked meats, general storage, and a laundry department. The use of this new branch occupy the third floor, and on the top story are manufactured the sausage and loaf goods.

ARMY ENLISTMENTS OPEN TO MUSICIANS

Enlistments in army bands are open to musicians, boys were this forenoon taken to the Hunnewell Club, where they were served an old-fashioned dinner prepared by the various women's clubs. This was followed by an entertainment in the evening in celebration. Private Harold F. Weeks of the 101st Infantry, now attached to the War Risk Insurance Department, was denied permission by the commanding officer to return home for the festivities, on account of pressure of work at the office. On learning of the circumstances, General Edwards gave a special order that the young man be released for the occasion. The proud mother was able to "hold her own" with the marchers whose boys marched in the parade.

COULDN'T SLEEP; ENDED HER LIFE

Southbridge, May 24.—Insomnia caused Mrs. Minnie Dawson to commit suicide by inhaling gas at her home in School street. In a note she wrote, "I haven't slept for two weeks, so concluded it was best I should give me." Worry over the illness of her daughter Lena, now at St. Vincent's Hospital, Worcester, is believed to have been a contributory cause.

NO STAY IN RETURNING HEROES, SAYS BLISS

Paris, May 24.—General Tasker H. Bliss, military representative of the American peace delegation, stated today that no orders had been issued to hold up the sending of American troops home. He said if there had been any slackening in the moving of troops homeward it probably was due to congestion in the ports and a scarcity of tonnage.

SOLDIER, BACK FROM SERVICE, AWARDED $150,000 FOR LOST LOVE

RICH YOUNG MAN MUST PAY

Bride Enticed by Lavish Gifts, Including $70,000 in Gems

New York, May 24.—Lieutenant La Verne A. Davies has won a verdict for $150,000 from a sheriff's jury against Alfred C. Harrison, Jr. Davies charged Harrison with having alienated the affections of Ruby Davies, his young wife, while he was serving his country in the army.

Harrison is the son of Alfred C. Harrison, multi-millionaire of Philadelphia. According to the Philadelphia Social Directory, the elder Harrison resides at Edge Hill, a suburb of Philadelphia. His daughter is the Countess Kari von Holnstein.

Young Harrison married Miss Marie M. Gibson. His residence has been at Ensenada de More, Cuba, where he has a large sugar plantation. He spends considerable of his time each year in this city. His wife is residing at No. 200 West Forty-seventh street.

ENLISTED AS MARINE.

Davies was married in January, 1917, when he was in modest circumstances. In June, 1917, he enlisted in the 92d Battalion of Marines, believing he could get into action quickly. A month later he was discharged from this branch of the service that he might join the army. On January 5, 1918, he enlisted in the army and was sent to Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va. He took his pretty twenty-year-old wife with him.

In July, 1918, his regiment—the 317th Infantry—was ordered to Porto Rico. His wife came to this city.

Soon after his departure, he says, Harrison enticed her away from him, provided her with lavish gifts of jewelry, expensive clothes, flowers and candy.

$20,000 GEM GIFTS.

Later, Davis adds, his wife admitted that Harrison had completely won her love and that through him she was supplying her with luxuries, one of which was a $20,000 necklace. She says he gave her about $70,000 worth of rubies, diamonds and pearls.

During his absence on military duty, Davis says, his wife's letters grew colder and colder. Little terms of endearment were missing and there was no longing expressed for his return. However, having been honorably discharged December 10, he hastened home, believing the fond bond soon revive his wife's flagging love.

To his surprise and astonishment he found Mrs. Davies had moved out of his modest apartment, he says, and was living in a luxurious home provided for her by the wealthy Cuban planter.

"My wife confessed to me," said the heart-broken lieutenant, "that her affection for me was totally destroyed by reason of her association with another man."

One night Davies met Harrison and Mrs. Davies together in a cafe. He started to square matters then and there, was promptly arrested for disorderly conduct. A magistrate discharged him on hearing the story of his wrecked home.

ARTIST GRAVES BACK FROM FRANCE

New York, May 24.—Abbott Graves, Boston artist, returned to New York today from France where for months he has been painting scenic sets for Y. M. C. A. huts and decorating other places as they hurry some of the cheer of home. Mr. Graves lives at No. 1712 Beacon street, Boston. He is a member of the American Art Association of Paris, the Salmagundi Club of New York, the Artists Guild of Chicago, the Arts Club of Washington, D. C., the Boston Art Club and the Copley Society of Boston.

FATHER ASKS $20,000 FOR DEATH OF SON

The Cobb, Bates & Yerxa Co. of Boston has been sued for $20,000 by Walter E. McIntee of Cambridge, administrator of the estate of John McIntee.

Inter of Cambridge. It is alleged that on February 10, 1919, while the deceased was walking on Prospect street, Cambridge, he was struck by an auto truck owned by the company and received injuries from which he died the same day.

$20,000 SUIT FOR DEATH BY AN AUTO

Winifred Chaplain of Concord has been sued for $20,000 by Cornelius X. O'Connell of Concord, as administrator of the estate of William O'Connell of Concord. It is alleged that on October 21, 1918, while the deceased was walking in Concord near the Assabet avenue bridge, he was struck by the defendant's automobile and received injuries from which he died the same day.

SEIZE 252 SHORT LOBSTERS IN MAINE

Pine Point, Me., May 24.—Fish Wardens Waldo A. Ricker and Herman A. Goldthwaite descended on the lobster fishermen here and found 252 short lobsters in ten different places of hiding behind houses and in boats.

The wardens say the lobsters were to be sold for shipment to Massachusetts.

Volume in Memory of Mother Sent to W. R. Hearst

San Francisco, May 24.—A volume "in memoriam" of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, in the form of a leather-covered engraved booklet, is speeding through the mail to William Randolph Hearst in New York. It was sent by members of the "Sea Point Parlor No. 158, Native Sons of Sausalito," of which Mr. Hearst is a member. A resolution addressed by the parlor says:

"Mrs. Hearst's talents, generosity and untiring zeal in behalf of all that is good made her a national figure."

'SHOCK WIRE' IS SUGGESTED FOR JAIL WALL

But Plan to Prevent Escape Finds No Favor With Council or Sheriff

Suggestion has been made that a "shock wire" of low voltage be installed along the top of the wall around Charles street jail to prevent any prisoner escaping in the way Herman Barney did last Tuesday.

Members of the City Council Committee on Prisons oppose the idea as "barbarous and cruel." Sheriff John A. Kellher says that the plan does not appeal to him. City Councillor Walter L. Collins thought, when the subject was under discussion, that signs might be posted, warning prisoners to keep away from the wall.

Plans which will soon come before the Council call for a higher wall and for elimination of the iron fence which now tops the wall. The Councillors view the fence as an invitation rather than a deterrent.

The trial of Barney for the murder of Patrolman Charles E. Deininger is on the trial list of the Superior Criminal Court for Monday but will not actually begin until Tuesday.

On Monday Assistant District Attorney William Kinney will examine nineteen witnesses summoned by the government and will prepare evidence to be laid before the court and jury.

SEEK O'BRIE BABY.

The regular juror panels of the two sessions of the Superior Criminal Court will be drawn upon to furnish a Barney jury.

In the absence from the supply of the regular jurors in the eight sessions of the Superior Civil Court will be drafted.

A baby boy — Vincent Vernon O'Brien—hidden somewhere in Boston, is the newest character in the mystery surrounding the life of Marion G. O'Brien, known as Barney's sweetheart.

This became known today with the news that James G. O'Brien, an actor, had started divorce proceedings against his wife, making the custody of the child, whereabouts unknown.

Hereafter the O'Brien baby will be referred to as Miss O'Brien.

The papers in the clerk's office of the Superior Court declare that the O'Briens were married at Boston on Nov. 17, 1917, and thereafter lived in Boston.

Major Thomas L. Walsh, attorney for O'Brien, charges that Marion O'Brien has been unfaithful, and Barney and a defendant named Hurley are mentioned in the charges.

MOTHER IS SILENT.

Ever since the separation of the couple O'Brien has been unable to locate his baby, and O'Brien will not tell where she has placed him. Although several investigations were conducted by various persons to learn the whereabouts of the child, nothing came of them.

The first intimation that the child was not with its mother came when during last February, O'Brien's mother went to the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children and tried to enlist its aid in locating the baby.

It was about that time that Mrs. O'Brien and Barney and Hurley were complained of for undue intimacy. Mrs. O'Brien, senior, is of the belief that her daughter-in-law put the baby in a boarding house.

Probation Officers and policemen lent a hand in trying to find the child. They questioned Marion O'Brien, but found her stubbornly silent.

NATICK BOY KILLED; TWO OTHERS HURT

Chester Garvey of Natick was killed and two others injured when the automobile in which they were riding swerved from the highway in Framingham and crashed into a tree. There were two other Natick boys in the auto.

Garvey, eighteen years old, Walter Ingalls and Otto H. Behrand, also of Natick, sustained serious injuries. Ingalls being still at Union Avenue Hospital, Framingham, undergoing treatment for concussion of the brain. It is said the driver of the automobile was blinded by the headlights of another machine.

JITNEY LINES TO SERVE BROOKFIELDS

Ware, May 24.—Jitney service between this town and West Brookfield, Warren and West Warren will be established in a few days by Frank E. Como, who will be given financial support of the town's merchants until the line becomes a self-paying. This will be the first public passenger service since the Ware & Brookfield street railway was wrecked. New busses are to be used and connections with all trains to and from Boston at West Brookfield will be made.

NEW BUILDERS TO MEET UNION DEMANDS

Carpenters Blame Local Employers for Enterprise of Outsiders

Confidence reigns at the striking carpenters' headquarters in Hanover street, according to union officials.

Secretary Joseph Toomey of the carpenters' local stated that about 300 men were now on strike, and that the number of some thirteen hundred who went out on the first of May are at work under better terms.

The union demands $1 per hour, an increase of 22 1-3 per cent. Employers have submitted a statement declaring that the demands for a 22 1-3 per cent. increase in wages at this time are killing Build New campaign, discouraging the erection of numerous structures of both public and private nature; depriving contractors employing the men of getting contracts because of the added cost demanded by this big jump in wages, creating dissatisfaction, unrest and stimulating exorbitant demands for wage increases in affiliated trades, thereby producing a multiplication of increases, ruining the building industry in an hour when it should be most helpful.

To these charges the union, through Secretary Toomey, says that the employers' statement is misleading. "The employers, not the workmen, are killing the Build Now campaign, and their preparations as far back as January last to do this very thing, when it looked as though the union demands were shortly coming," says the union statement.

"The employers were aware of the demands of all the allied building trades, and to place any question of dissatisfaction or unrest upon the carpenters is misleading.

"In regard to crippling the building industry, outside contractors are shortly coming to Boston on big contracts and are willing to meet the new schedule."

Secretary Toomey added: "I am sorry to see that we shall have to be done by builders from New York and other places. I believe in home talent, and would like to see our local builders get business, but these big contractors have plenty of work, it seems, are willing to meet our demands and will no doubt get all the business."

LAUNCH DESTROYER AT SQUANTUM YARD

The torpedo boat destroyer Meade was launched today from the plant of the New River Shipbuilding Company at Squantum.

Miss Annie Paulding Meade of New York was sponsor for the big destroyer and smashed the bottle of champagne on the vessel's bow.

Miss Meade is the daughter of Rear Admiral Richard Meade, for whom the destroyer is in part named.

Rear Admiral Meade is the son of Brigadier-General Robert Meade, a former resident of Lexington, Mass. The destroyer was named for both representatives of the Meade family, which has contributed much to United States naval and military history.

CUT OFF SKIRT TO KEEP WIFE HOME

To keep his wife Dora in the house and make her care for the children, Harry Mitchell laid her on the floor and cut her skirt off with a knife, he testified in Divorce Court.

Mitchell is suing for a divorce on the ground of desertion and is defending a cross-libel charging cruel and abusive treatment.

"We had a spat," he testified. "She said she'd be — if she'd stay in the house and care for the children. Then she tried to leave the house. I stood in the door and barred the way. She made a swing at me and I held her in my arms. I said, 'I'll make you stay in and care for them.' Then I laid her on the floor and cut off her skirt, as I could not find the combination to unhook it."

Mitchell testified his wife disappeared with their two children, Dora in January, 1915, and he searched for three days and as many nights before he located her. Finally he decided to shadow a man named Arthur Teel, who is named as co-respondent in the case. He saw the latter enter an apartment at No. 36 Marshfield street. He stepped in also, he said, and found his wife and Teel about to undertake their evening repast.

YOUNG TAME BULL INJURES FARMER

Worcester, May 24—A young bull which he thought was tame, carried George Barton fifty feet on his horns and then deposited him against a stone wall at his farm in Auburn. A well-aimed rock thrown by Charles Kaiser, which hit the bull in the head and knocked it down, probably saved Barton's life. Barton is not considered dangerously hurt by any cut. The animal is to be sent to the bull heaven via the bullet route.

CHILD DROWNED IN NASHUA AT CLINTON

Clinton, May 24.—Nashua river claimed its first victim of the season when seven-year-old Stephen Golash of No. 11 Green street was drowned while wading near the Barrett street bridge. The grief stricken mother, Mrs. Mary Golash, tried to dive and recover the body, but it was nearly an hour before it was recovered.

Col. Guthrie at Old North

Colonel Guthrie and his gallant aggregation of McLean Highlanders will attend a meeting Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock at the Old North Church, Salem street, where Colonel Guthrie will deliver an address on "Peace Problems." More than 100 kilties in full uniform are expected to be present and the public is invited.

"ANGEL FACE BRIDE" WARNS AGAINST AGED "ROMEOS"

Mrs. Violet B. Ellicott, known wherever artists gather as the "Girl with the Angel Face." She has been granted a decree of divorce in New Yrok from her husband, who is many years her senior. She is also awarded custody of their two beautiful children. "Girls are foolish to let their silly young heads be turned with the mad lovemaking of men who have far outlived their youth," is the warning to others.

9-CENT FARE MOTHER OF 7 ON 'L' BY JULY 1

KILLED BY AUTO

The Boston Elevated is to increase its fares to nine cents possibly within the next six weeks.

The trustees of the road admit that the boost is inevitable, and that the exact amount of the new fare will be decided before July 1.

In spite of greatly increased receipts since December 21, 1918, when the eight-cent fare was put into effect, constantly increasing operating costs have eaten into the road's income, with the result, that the monthly financial statements issued by the trustees have shown deficits of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Relief from the high cost to the traveling public is promised, however, by James Jackson of Brookline, chairman of the board of trustees.

"An increase in fares is absolutely inevitable," said Mr. Jackson, "but the time is soon coming, I believe, when, with the removal of heavy and unnecessary burdens and the inauguration of economies other than those which we have instituted, we may be able to announce a subsequent reduction in riding traffic—perhaps a return to the 7-cent fares —but the day of the 5-cent fare in Boston is gone forever."

$2,000 FIRE LOSS ON CONGRESS STREET

Wool valued at $2,000 was destroyed by fire in the storeroom on the fifth floor of the building at No. 301 Congress street. The fire started from spontaneous combustion. The building is owned by C. E. Cutting, and the fifth floor occupied by George Whitaker Company, wool dealers. The fire was discovered by a patrol

APRIL USES MORE WOOL THAN MARCH

Washington, May 24—Manufacturers used 11,688,000 pounds more wool during April than in March, 1919, the total amount being 45,600,000 pounds, grease equivalent in April, or an increase of 32 per cent. over the amount used in March. The amount of wool consumed by manufacturers during April, 1918, was 70,700,000 pounds, grease equivalent, or 25 per cent more than in April of this year.

THREE HURT IN CRASH OF MOTORCYCLES

Whitinsville, May 24—Three persons were injured in a collision between motorcycles near Linwood bridge. They were William Ware, Whitinsville; his wife and James Fournier of Woonsocket. Two others riding on the machines were unhurt.

Mrs. Alice Nash, 35, of No. 37 Willard street, Cambridge, who was killed by an automobile on Charles River road, driven by Sabin Fletcher of No. 29 Fairborn street, Boston, leaves seven children between the ages of two and fourteen.

Albert Nash, the father, a plumber by trade, left for New York a little more than a week ago. He has yet to be informed of the fate of his wife. Meanwhile, the children are given temporary care by kindly neighbors.

Charles, the eldest of the family, is 14, and works. Others are Albert, 11; Paul, 9; John, 7; Louise, 5; Joe, 3, and Lindora, 2. The latest relative is a grandmother, Mrs. Alice Curtis of Larch road, Cambridge. It is believed that she will take the children pending the father's return.

Mrs. Nash was in company with another woman, Mrs. Alice Dolan, thirty. They were walking along the road near Beaver street, Cambridge, at the same time of the accident. Mrs. Dolan was also struck by the same automobile and taken to the same hospital with Mrs. Nash. Mrs. Nash was pronounced dead upon examination. Mrs. Dolan is suffering from scalp wounds and internal injuries. She was better today. Mrs. Nash was found to have died from multiple fractures, including one arm, leg and several ribs.

Mrs. Dolan is he wife of Edward Dolan, with whom she is not living, and she has a daughter Mary, aged six. Mrs. Dolan has been making her home with an aunt, Mrs. Anna McEachern, No. 23 Decatur street, East Boston. The injured woman is a striking blonde, well known in East Boston.

Fletcher was arraigned in the Cambridge District Court today, charged with operating an automobile in a manner endangering the lives and safety of the public. He pleaded not guilty, was held in $500 bonds for a hearing a week from Monday.

Fletcher told the police that he did not see the two women as they stepped in front of his car from behind another, and that he put on the emergency brakes as soon as he could. He claims they were struck when the car skidded.

MEDALS OF 3 NATIONS ON THIS SUPER-HERO

New York, May 24—Right on the breast of the famous Sergeant York hero of the famous Sergeant York is another super-hero has arrived from overseas. The latter a Sergeant Joseph Alley of Chicago, who came in on the Kaiserin, wearing the Congressional Medal, the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre with two stars, and the British Military Medal.

Sergeant Alex won all his decorations for the trifling stunt of capturing single-handed a German machine gun nest of nine guns, after having warmed up for the job by bayoneting six of the gunners.

FACES CHARGE OF ABDUCTING TWO GIRLS

Hyannis Man Taken From Boston to Barnstable County Jail

Ernest A. Pratt of Hyannis, also known as Harry Chester Fay of Allen E. Hill, has been taken from Boston to the Barnstable County jail to answer to the charge of abduction of two girls under sixteen years of age.

The man, who was arrested in Mobile, Ala., under the Mann Act, was discharged by Judge Morton in federal district in this city on the ground that only a State law had been violated.

The girls, Lillian Bryant and Mary Smith, are now in the care of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, whom officials their return to this State is largely due.

According to the police Pratt was married to Lillian Bryant five years ago. They say he deserted his wife and child, and came East with his wife's sister, going to Boston, where it is alleged the woman gave birth to a child.

OPENED HYANNIS STORE.

During this time, according to the authorities, Pratt adopted the Smith girl, who was then about nine years old. It is said he lodged her with an institution at Westford, where she had been placed. Her mother was said to be in Perth Amboy, N. J.

In 1917 Pratt and the women with whom he lived, together with the children, including Mary Smith, went to Hyannis. There Pratt opened a confectionery store, the police say, and the two women took up housekeeping intimate with Lillian Bryant, then about thirteen years old.

In 1918 the police charge that Pratt and the two girls started for Florida in an automobile. They assert he intended to go into the automobile business in Miami, Florida.

In connection with this intention he is said to have hired a brother of the Bryant girls, who is now in the army, to drive two additional machines to the South.

The police say that one car was damaged in New York, and Pratt ordered it sold. The second was driven by Bryant, who came to grief in Atlanta, Ga., and was also disposed of.

Pratt, it is said, had no intention of where he was said to be when an indictment against him by the Barnstable County Court. This was in the Fall of 1918.

INDICTED BY U. S. JURY.

The authorities say that the woman with whom Pratt lived at Hyannis got word to him of the indictment, and he dropped out of sight. Later appearing at Mobile, Ala., accompanied by the two girls. Here he was indicted by a Federal Grand Jury on a charge of violation of the Mann Act.

Pratt is said to have sold his remaining automobile, and the police proceeds engaged counsel to fight the charge. State Officer Bradford of Hyannis, with the Department of Justice and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty, is said to have had the girls brought back to this State. Pratt was also brought to Boston from Mobile, and is to appear in the Federal District Court, where Judge Morton presides over him.

PETITION FOR BEACH IN EAST BOSTON

In a renewed effort to obtain beach-bathing facilities for the residents of East Boston, Representative William H. Hearn has circulated a petition addressed to the Governor and Council in which he asks that a visit to Boston be made by the Governor and Council to meet the Bancroft school, in the making of the plan according to the friends of Hearn. It is to be of gold and silver, and will appear upon the architectural figures of the elderly women who are carrying it. The other side will be engraved with significant inscriptions.

The petition was signed with the inauguration of the plan at a temporary meeting held in the Bancroft school, in time in carrying it out. Miss Meredith was at the helm, where she was assisted by Miss Ruth Wheeler, who had submitted herself to the examination by Miss Meredith a months on his return from New York.

CHILDREN TO APPEAR IN TALK ON TRAINING

Early training in humane ideals will be discussed at the monthly conference of the New England Anti-Vivisection Society, Tuesday, May 27, 2:30 p. m., in Myers Hall, Tremont street, near the corner of Bromfield. The Francis E. Willard Settlement will give a demonstration of the way this can be done, under the direction of Miss Ruth Wheeler. At the close of the meeting Miss Wheeler and Edward H. Clement will preside at the conference, which closes the session for the season.

NAVY MAY TAKE HOG ISLAND YARD

Washington, D. C., May 24—Hog Island shipyard, at Philadelphia, the creation of all war emergency establishments, is to be made a navy auxiliary yard and the chief submarine base on the Atlantic coast, Representative Britton of Illinois, who will be chairman of the naval affairs committee on yards and docks, will take this question up for consideration immediately after his committee is organized next week, he announced today.

LAWRENCE CARMEN VOTE TO GO ON STRIKE

Lawrence, May 24—By a vote of 199 to 33 the members of the local carmen's union, employes of the Bay State Street Railway Company, have voted to strike. The sanction of the international officers is awaited before a date can be set for the walkout.

CONFERENCE AT WINNIPEG IS FUTILE

Canadian City Still in Grip of Strike; 1,500 Troops Held in Reserve

By International News Service.

Winnipeg, May 24.—Failure of the committee which has been in conference here to agree upon a plan for the settlement of Winnipeg's general strike was announced today by Mayor Gray, chairman of the committee. The committee adjourned with none of the fundamental differences between employers and the strike adjusted.

Unwillingness on the part of the employers to accept the principle of collective bargaining are the main issues upon which the conference split, it is said. The question of the basis upon which the men are to be reinstated is also supposedly involved.

Hopes of an early adjustment of the situation. The committee adjourned with none of the fundamental differences between employers and the strike adjusted.

Unwillingness on the part of the employers to accept the principle of collective bargaining are the main issues upon which the conference split, it is said. The question of the basis upon which the men are to be reinstated is also supposedly involved.

With prospects of settlement of the strike still remote, military authorities are watching the situation closely. Reinforcements for the 1,500 troops already here are expected today. Two companies of mounted police have been ordered here from Regina to reserve to maintain order. A cavalry force of 1,500 is now held in reserve here.

Minister Meighan and Robertson of the Dominion cabinet are still in conference here with opposing forces, but as yet have made little progress in settling the strike.

Citizens are demanding that the government take steps to remove the deadlock. The government telegraph service, even to the extent of forbidding the sending of press dispatches adhered to, with the result that reporters here are preparing to resume publication next week.

AGED "ROMEO" GOES TO NEW YORK FOR RING

Romeo Keys is in New York today conferring with his jeweler for a wedding ring for his own design that is to be presented to the maid fiancee of eighteen-year-old Florence Grandon of Dorchester the erstwhile Harvard club operator. The ring is to be a duplicate of the one which the wealthy sixty-three-year-old Harvard graduate whose home is in Cambridge, will present his fiancee when on a visit to Boston.

Keys is interested in the making of the ring according to the friends of Keys. It is to be of gold and silver, and will appear upon the architectural figures of the elderly women who are carrying it. The other side will be engraved with significant inscriptions.

The petition was signed with the inauguration of the ring at a temporary meeting held in the Bancroft school, in time in carrying it out. Miss Meredith was at the helm, where she was assisted by Miss Ruth Wheeler, who had submitted herself to the examination by Miss Meredith a months on his return from New York.

SAYS FLANDERS THREATENED TO SHOOT HER

Wife Charges He Demanded She Sign Papers Releasing Dower Rights

That her husband, Lewis Flanders, Harvard graduate and late sergeant in F Company, 101st Engineers, had threatened to shoot her if she did not sign certain papers which his lawyers had warned her not to sign, was the testimony given before Judge John K. Brown of the Suffolk Superior Court by Mrs. Hazel Pratt Woodbridge Flanders in her suit for separate maintenance.

Mrs. Flanders, before her marriage to the young Harvard man, who was a prominent member of the First Corps cadets, was Mrs. Hazel Pratt Woodbridge, widow of William Rutherford Woodbridge, founder of the Columbia Life Insurance Company.

Flanders is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Flanders of Brookline and Sharon. He went overseas in 1917 and was wounded in action in France.

Mrs. Flanders was suing for separate maintenance and for $50,000 alimony. The exact amount of which was not made clear. The granting of the decree nisi and the alimony is pending the $50,000 suit brought against her father-in-law and mother-in-law by the handsome and vivacious bride.

GENERAL BULLARD BACK FROM FRANCE

New York, May 24—Lieutenant-General Robert Lee Bullard, who arrived on the troopship Kaiserin Augusta Victoria here, is the highest ranking officer of the American army who has returned so far. General Bullard is in command of the Second Army and is credited with having refused to fall back when the German drive was at its height.

He wears the Is & C, the Croix de Guerre with palm, the Order of Leopold and is commander of the Legion of Honor.

BOGUS AGENTS OF 'ARMY' IN SOMERVILLE

The committee of Somerville Elks soliciting funds for the Salvation Army Red Kettle drive is handicapped in "getting over the top" because of bogus agents who are canvassing the city previously and receiving many contributions. Officials of the Elks say that they have had not seen anyone in this district, but are asking the co-operation of the people not to contribute to collectors unless they have credentials signed by the Elks of Somerville.

"FAKE" ASPIRIN WAS TALCUM.

Always Ask for Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" In Bayer Package

Beware of counterfeits! Only recently a Brooklyn manufacturer was sent to the penitentiary for flooding the country with bogus powder tablets, which he claimed to be Aspirin.

Don't buy Aspirin tablets in a pill box. Insist on getting the Bayer package with the safety "Bayer Cross" on the package and on tablets. No other way!

You must say "Bayer". Never ask for merely Aspirin tablets. The name "Bayer" means you are getting the genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," proved safe by millions of people.

In the Bayer package are proper directions for the use of Bayer Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Sciatica, Colds, Grippe, Influenza-Colds, Neuritis and pain generally.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," Americans made and owned, are sold in vest pocket boxes of 12 tablets, which cost only a few cents, also in bottles of 24 and bottles of 100—also capsules. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

ADVISES YOUTHS HOW TO WIN SUCCESS

Retiring Secretary of Y. M. C. A. Gives Farewell Message to Boys of Today

"Making money is not all; every man owes service to his country, his city, his church and his fellow-man. No man can live wholly unto himself."

So George W. Mehaffey, retiring after thirty-one years of service as general secretary of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, begins his farewell message to the young men of today, given through the Boston American. On June 3 Mr. Mehaffey voluntarily leaves the work to which he has devoted the prime of his life.

"Many men," he continued, "have offered their all in the great world war. Some have made the supreme sacrifice. Can you have been spared any one living yourself for some good purpose? What are you going to do to conserve the great interests the birth of which resulted from your efforts at the front? Every man must fit himself for mighty accomplishments.

"Putting on a uniform has not changed a man unless it has opened up to him a larger vision of life, unless it has enabled him to mingle with men of higher ideals and larger vision, and possibly of larger opportunities, he himself possessed so that he has become 'a man of larger vision and consequently greater ambition.'

MUST PAY PRICE OF SUCCESS.

"Failure in life, to a man of normal capacities, is due to his unwillingness to pay the price of success. Great men have always been, will always be men who have paid this price; men who have toiled and struggled; men who have unhesitatingly sacrificed the midnight oil; men whose eyes have never glanced from their main objective in life. And without exception they have been men who had some definite objective.

"Many young men don't know how to make friends and mingle with men. They lead the life of the recluse. Choose your friends among those who will help you to rise, not among those who will drag you down. Every genuine friend is an asset in life.

"Daniel Webster was once asked 'What has been the greatest thought in your life?' And without hesitation he replied, 'My individual responsibility to Almighty God.' Every young man who fails to realize this individual responsibility falls short of the largest achievement of life career.

"Every man has not learned to be the steward of his income, and failing in this deprives himself of much real pleasure in life, and of much of his influence. Not only does the saving to some good purpose should become a habit early in life, but every young man, who, when earning but forty dollars a month, set aside 10 per cent of his small income for benevolences. When this man died, a short time since, it developed that his benevolences amounted to two thousand dollars per day. He had contributed that sum to the welfare of his fellow beings. He had acquired the habit early in life, and experienced its pleasures all through his life.

"It is better to acquire good habits than evil ones. Avoid any indulgences which are of themselves morally wrong, or which you find will interfere with your objective in life, assuming that your objective be a worthy one.

"Human nature has not changed during the thirty-one years I have been general secretary of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association; but conditions of living have. The young man of today and the young man of thirty-one years ago are very different persons.

YOUNG MAN OF TODAY RESTLESS.

"The young man of today is restless, and is ever seeking something new. He demands perpetual change, constant novelty. He forgets that the old sometimes has greater value than the new. He demands more entertainment; he is more frivolous. He is not as studious; he is not a superficial reader, little given to the best in literature. He is less cultured, more satisfied with things of less value.

"The modern young man is living too fast. I do not mean this in the sense that he dissipates too much, but in the sense that he is hurrying through life hardly taking time to grasp the fact that he is hurrying through life. He has no time for the finer and more satisfying things of life.

"The modern business or professional man does not spend enough time with his wife and children. He is losing the vast happiness to be found in the establishment of a family life. He is trying to do in a day what once took a week or even a month.

"He is the product of the age of the telephone, the telegraph, the railroad, the automobile and the airship. Yet I do not believe his individual accomplishment is as great as it might be without this heading speed.

"A good home and a good mother are the real foundations of a man's character. It is there that the seeds of future greatness are sown. Education is the first step towards building one's character. It is not enough that one have an education. It must be a practical education—not merely what is called 'culture.'

PICK WORK YOU ENJOY.

"You should always try and pick out a line of work which you enjoy. You cannot do your best work unless your heart is in it. Success lies, not only in good and faithful service in the line of your employment, but also in preparing yourself for promotion.

"Learn how the man above you does his work, and prepare yourself to step into his shoes when opportunity knocks at your door. Responses to appeals for voluntary service in your community will enable you to make your contribution to the general welfare. This last is a duty which you owe, if your life is to attain its maximum growth."

BILL PROVIDES FOR I. & R. IN CONSTITUTION

Washington, May 24. — Senator Pomerene of Ohio presented a bill in the senate providing an amendment to the constitution for an initiative and referendum.

Shielded Friend by Adopting Baby, But Lost Husband

Pittsfield, May 24.—The story of how the adoption of a child which she represented as her own, to shield a friend's good name, resulted in the loss of her husband, was told by Mrs. Elizabeth Grigsy of Francis avenue.

Mrs. Grigsy appeared in Probate Court and asked separate support, declaring that her husband deserted her February 22. Judge Slocum reserved decision.

According to the story told the woman, who is twenty-six years old, had a girl friend who gave birth to a child in Springfield on January 2. On January 23, Mrs. Grigsy, who was childless, presented the child to her husband as her own, she having gone to Springfield some time previously. Mr. Grigsy, it was testified, brought his wife and the child to Pittsfield. A month later he learned of the deception and left home, according to his wife.

BOY PUPIL WINS LOVE OF JAP POET'S WIFE

Leaves Husband to Assume Marital Relations With Youthful Co-Respondent

New York, May 24.—Oriental, poetical temperament and Greenwich Village's code of marital ethics crashed in a head-on collision when Takashi Kanno, Japanese poet and protege of the late Joaquin Miller, appeared before Justice Greenbaum in the Supreme Court to urge his claim for a divorce from Gertrude Boyle Kanno sculptress.

Kanno named Yeitaro Ishigaki, a youthful pupil who lived with him for some time in the old Miller home, co-respondent. Ishigaki is at the Miller retreat, "The Heights," on the Piedmont hills overlooking San Francisco.

"He was only a little boy," said the poet-plaintiff. "I wanted him to know my happiness, but also I soon found out that my wife no longer cared for me. It was he who thought was for my little friend, so we quarreled and she came to New York."

NO ILL-WILL TOWARD WIFE.

Kanno said he had no ill will toward his wife. He merely wished to clear the way for her to find the happiness she craved without scandal and for himself to retire in dignity and contemplation of the poetic beauties of life. Ishigaki, he said, made no secret of his devotion to the wife of his former tutor and patron, in fact he was the soul of frankness.

An interesting point on how the village views such little social idiosyncracies was given in the testimony of Mrs. Eesie Opperman and Mrs. Sophie McCammon, who said they had met frequently at Mrs. Kanno's studio if West Fourteenth street. Both said they knew Mrs. Kanno and Ishigaki regarded themselves as married, even though they had been barred from a conventional ceremony.

CONVENTIONS IGNORED.

Replying to further inquiries of Justice Greenbaum, both women said they could see no harm in maintaining social relations with a bright and talented young woman who was devoting herself to an artistic mission in the world and living with the man she loved even though she did ignore ordinary conventions.

No decree was offered and decision was reserved.

The marriage of Kanno and Gertrude Boyle in 1908 was the subject of much publicity. The family of the young woman, whose genius as a sculptor had already been recognized, invoked the California law against marriages between members of the white and yellow races. The pair finally slipped away to Seattle, where the marriage was performed.

School's 10th Birthday

The Huntington School will celebrate its tenth anniversary June 6 with a banquet at the Boston City Club. The speakers will be Headmaster Ira A. Pillsbury and Frank Palmer Speare, president of Northeastern College.

In Rough Company.

Douglas Fairbanks has a suitcase full of brand new stunts that he introduces in his next picture, "The Knickerbocker Buckaroo," which is to be shown at the Tremont Theatre the first half of next week.

Douglas has been in constant training with Bull Montana, Spike Robinson and Kid McCoy and, to quote the screen athlete, "I was in the pink of condition when I made this film."

His latest Aircraft release takes him out west, where in an effort to be unselfish and do things for other people, he gets into various melodramatic mix-ups that create their own comedy incidents.

While Fairbanks is usually of an enthusiastic nature, he feels that "Knickerbocker Buckaroo" gives him greater opportunities than ever afforded him before in his screen career.

He purchased a new horse, having retired "Star" from active service, and was in daily practice with it before the start of the regular day at the studio, getting acquainted and trying new stunts.

SOMERVILLE THEATRE

Much interest is manifested by the large clientele of the Somerville Theatre in the announcement that Manager Clyde E. McArdle has made arrangements through Joseph A. Di Pesa for the appearance of Edmund Breese, America's foremost actor, in a revival of "The Master Mind" for the entire week of May 26th. Mr. Breese, who is one of the shining lights of the stage, and recently appeared in Boston in "Why Marry?" has been especially engaged for the presentation of his most recent starring vehicle at a tremendous cost. He will appear in his famous role which he created in the metropolis, appearing in the part for nearly six consecutive months. It is a character fittingly adapted to Mr. Breese's personality and enables him to give full vent to his thespic powers.

BANGOR LINE RESUMES.

Another branch of the Eastern Steamship Company, that from Boston to Bangor, with connections at Rockland for Bar Harbor and intermediate landings, will resume operations on next Monday, May 26. The schedule time for leaving Boston will be at 5 p. m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from India Wharf, returning from Bangor on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays at 2 p. m. This schedule enables passengers to make immediate connections at Rockland with the boat for Bar Harbor, probably the J. T. Morse, early in the morning, thereby allowing them a sail along the beautiful slopes of Mt. Desert, reaching Bar Harbor at noon. The steamship leaves on the return trip from Bar Harbor at 1:30 p. m.

It will be good news for all patrons of the Bangor Line to know that the Steamship Camden has been assigned to this branch of the service, thereby assuring excellent accommodations with express speed and altogether good service.

During the past week business has picked up wonderfully on the other arms of the service and the Metropolitan branch, between Boston and New York, has done a capacity business, both passenger and freight, and the report is frequently a "sell out" of the staterooms in both directions. The Belfast and Northland are now assigned to this arm of the service.

WALDORF THEATRE

There are a number of amusing features in the bills of combined vaudeville and motion pictures announced for the week at the Waldorf Theatre which should provide the best of fare for the patrons of this house. Through the first half there will be offered Cleo Lewis, singer and comedienne; Winkle and Dean, Caucasian entertainers, Mr. Winkle having just returned from service abroad, where he was known among the forces as "the singing Yank"; George Randall and company, in the one-act comedy, "Too Easy"; Guerro and Carmen, in a refined musical act, including violin and harp playing, and Kerekjarto's pigs, highly trained porcine comedians. On the screen there will be shown the news pictures, a comedy, and "Come Again Smith," featuring J. Warren Kerrigan. The bill for the last half will include Bud Larrigo, cowboy ventriloquist; Conrad and James; William Morrow, monologist; Mahoney Brothers, in their novelty comedy acrobats, and on the screen, "Love Hunger," picturing Lillian Walker.

BROOKLINE SCHOOL HEAD TENDERS RESIGNATION

George I. Aldrich, superintendent of the schools of Brookline has tendered his resignation to the School Board of that town. Mr. Aldrich has been superintendent of the Brookline schools since 1900.

In recognition of his long and valuable service the school committee has voted to appoint Mr. Aldrich superintendent-emeritus upon the appointment of his successor, when his resignation as superintendent of schools will be accepted.

GIRLS A FEATURE OF BIG SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS

A quiet moment in the dressing tent of the circus which is to show here next week.

The world war made a lot of changes in the personnel of the big circuses. The scarcity of men, owing to the draft, and the large number of circus acts that were, at least temporarily crippled by the demands of the flag upon the male members, opened the way for the introduction of young women in the circus to a degree previously unknown.

The Sells-Floto circus, which will be seen on the old Huntington avenue grounds all next week, opening Monday afternoon, was one of the first to utilize young women in all its departments during the war, and the experiment proved so successful that it is being continued to a very considerable extent. Last season the outdoor was a young woman, girls were utilized as ticket sellers, and at least half the performers were circus girls. Young girls still serve as usurers in the big shows and girls are everywhere in evidence in the performance.

The three herds of elephants were trained by young women, who also exhibit them in the three rings. The principal riders are girls, whether in the principal acts or of the whirlwind riding numbers. In the aerial offerings the girls predominate, and their cleverness and daring is said to be remarkable. In one big number, the aerial ballet, twenty-two girls glitter and swing by their teeth in the glare of the great amphitheatre.

JACCHIA AGAIN LEADS POPS

The fourth week of the Pop concerts at Symphony Hall begins tomorrow night, with Agide Jacchia once more at its helm, having recovered from his illness. For the last few nights Mr. Lenom, an old-time and well-liked Pops conductor, has been obligingly filling the vacant stand. Unhampered by controversies over wine and beer, the Pops more than thrives on sandwiches, sundaes and succulent beverages.

Moreover, nothing can check the jubilation of Harvard Night, which comes on Wednesday next, May 28. The hall and waitresses will be decked in red.

A Real Reporter.

Newspaper stories about reporters who climb four stories to get missing papers and are then given a raise to five hundred a month by the city editor are usually written by some aspiring young man who never saw the inside of his own home town composing room, let alone the real color that surrounds the editorial mazes of a metropolitan newspaper.

And, likewise, in moving pictures it is the common thing for young reporters to appear on the scene with lumber-bound notebooks and probably silver-mounted pencils which they flourish all over the place while the person being interviewed are talking. All of which is by way of preface to the statement that Harry Carr, editor of the Los Angeles Times Magazine, has written a Dorothy Gish newspaper story and that he has insisted that the reporter hero act like a reporter.

Dorothy's new picture is "It Get Him Yet," and it has to do with a girl reporter and a reporter of decidedly radical ideas. Dorothy plays the part of the girl, and she chose Richard Barthelmess as the boy.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A toilet preparation of merit. Helps to eradicate dandruff. For Restoring Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair. 60c. and $1.00 at druggists.

PARAGON PARK

Paragon Park, the playground of the Hub, opens next week. The famous Palm Garden, Boston's most famous place for dinner and entertainment, will open the night before Decoration Day.

For the amusement of patrons of the Palm Garden has been engaged a company of fifty people, singers, dancers, comedians and specialty acts, who will take part in the brand new, smart revue, to be known as the "Broadway Revue of 1918."

Two big orchestras will take part in the entertainment in the Palm Garden. Mermalda and her diving girls will be seen on the stage of the Palm Garden in a new and startling diving act, entitled "Psyche at the Bath."

A grand opening illumination Friday night will celebrate the fact that the park itself began operations Friday morning. Saturday night there will be another brilliant display of pyrotechnics; and Sunday evening will be marked by Italian illuminations.

Free features in the park will include a new, hair-raising loop the loop act by Oscar C. Babcock; a high dive from a 100-foot pedestal into a four by four tank, by Mermalda; De Case in a breath-taking high wire act, and Gorman's diving horses.

BARNUM & RINGLING.

Not since the beginning of tented amusements has there been any event so important to the circus patron as the announcement that the Ringling Brothers' and Barnum & Bailey circuses have been combined into one mammoth show.

For years the acknowledged giants of the sawdust world these two institutions now comprise the biggest and most remarkable traveling organization that has yet toured America. For more than two decades the shows, as separate concerns, presented the world's foremost aerial artists, the two greatest menageries in existence and all else that comprised the cream of the circus world. Now the famous showmen have selected the very best of both shows and centralized it in a great, new circus known as the Ringling Brothers' and Barnum & Bailey shows Combined.

Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Combined will exhibit here for a period of one week, commencing Monday, June 9, at the Huntington avenue circus grounds.

MAKES SUCCESS IN ROLE OF CHINESE

Reihard Barthelmess Has Appeared in Many Prominent Film Plays

Richard Barthelmess, who plays Cheng Huan in David Wark Griffith's "Broken Blossoms," a screen version of one of the Limehouse Nights' stories, has had a notable career in the movies. Born in New York city in 1895, he was educated at Trinity College, Hartford.

His early stage work was done in stock companies, those useful schools for developing actors, and he remained in that training for five years.

His screen career began with Herbert Brenon's productions, appearing in "War Brides" and "The Eternal Sin." Next came the engagement with the Famous Players' organization and he appeared in "Bab's Burglar," "Bab's Diary," "The Seven Swans," "Rich Man, Poor Man" and "Three Men and a Girl."

With Goldwyn he appeared in "Nearly Married" and was also seen in "Wild Primrose," a Vitagraph film, and in "The Hope Chest" and "Boots" for Griffith.

His selection as the Chink in "Broken Blossoms" was a wise one. He looks and acts the part to perfection and makes more plausible the glamor of the young girl for the Chinaman. And he has thoroughly realized the character of the dreamer and poet, who is also a merchant in a small way. And he succeeds in making it evident that his affection for the child is a pure one—like the love of a father or big brother.

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

Boston, which this week and next has its first chance in a long time to hear Gilbert and Sullivan finely sung, positively loses this chance next Saturday night. There will be a special matinee Friday.

Lovers of these classics of the light opera stage will be pleased, however, to learn that "The Mikado," probably the greatest and certainly the most popular of the entire list of Gilbert and Sullivan works, is to be repeated this week. Such a wonderful hit did this masterpiece make that it was decided to continue its production instead of "Pinafore." The repertory for the week will consist of "The Mikado" and "The Gondoliers." The latter has not been sung in Boston for a number of years, and this production will afford many local devotees of Gilbert and Sullivan perchance their only chance of hearing it. It will be presented Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening and Thursday matinee; while "The Mikado" will be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings and Friday and Saturday matinees.

The principle roles of "The Gondoliers" are cast as follows: The Duke of Plaza-Toro, Bertram Peacock; Luiz, Frank Phillips; the Grand Inquisitor, William Danforth; Venetian gondoliers, Warren Proctor, James Goddard.

GLOBE THEATRE

Changing its usual order of semi-weekly change of photoplay bills the Globe Theatre management has resolved to keep a photoplay throughout the week. The production honored in this regard is "Knickerbocker Buckaroo," Douglas Fairbanks' latest contribution to the screen, which will thereby be given its first Boston showings. Gossip of the screen world has said that this is the most pretentious production that the famous screen comedian has ever made, and certainly there has been an immense sum spent upon it. The comedian for his part has conspired to include therein a number of new thrills such as his individual ability in this line of work has given him first eminence. It is said to be a story of East and West America.

ORPHEUM THEATRE

Heading the vaudeville is the act of Lyons and Yosco, well known in their realm of entertainment as leading artists, this being their first engagement here at popular prices. They will present their musical act, "The Harpist and the Singer." In which they will offer their original compositions. Others on the bill will be Anderson and Roan, in the one-act comedy, "Out of Work;" Bert Walton, variety entertainer; Rock and Stone, in song and comedy, and the Rainbow Trio of comedy acrobats. On the screen there will be shown the latest news pictures, a comedy and Douglas Fairbanks, in his latest photoplay, "Knickerbocker Buckaroo." There has been much written in description of the great preparations made in the filming of this photoplay, it being one of the most extravagant of productions, because the star had so enjoyed his story that he wished to make it his most pretentious production. It is said that he has gone to the extreme in providing thrills, as well as in making it a superior output, via the banners, and from advance reports he has admirably succeeded.

"STEP LIVELY GIRLS"

"Step Lively Girls," a show that found much favor with patrons of this form of amusement last season, is announced for the coming week at the Gayety Theatre, commencing tomorrow.

A new two-act travesty called "The Ladies' Hotel," will be presented and it is said to embrace all the elements that go to make up a rattling good entertainment. Snappy dialogue, lively musical numbers and novel vaudeville specialties constitute the principal elements of the performance and they are said to be given by a company of unusually talented entertainers.

All of the important principals of last season's cast are in the organization, including Rich McAllister, Harry T. Shannon. In addition to these are several men and women who have been engaged for their special fitness to the requirements of the new show; among them are Jack Mundy, Anna Propp and Margie Wilson.

MISS CLARK'S DEBUT

Myrtle Ellen Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton A. Clark of No. 1511 Commonwealth avenue, winner of a merit contest recently conducted by a Boston evening newspaper, will make her professional stage debut on Monday evening, May 26, appearing as one of the leading women of Selwyn & Co.'s new 1919 musical comedy production, "Among the Girls," now running at the Park Square Theatre. Miss Clark, who is a trifle over eighteen years old and possessed of an exceptionally fine voice coupled with ability to dance, is five feet and one-half inches tall and weighs nearly 120 pounds. She is a member of the sophomore class of the Girls' Latin School of Boston.

Miss Elsie Gordon Tells How Cuticura Healed Her Pimples

"Itching and eczema started on my foot due to the heat of my blood. It itched so that I could not sleep at night. The eczema started in scales on the side near the ankle, and spread to the sole, and when I scratched, my foot got sore. I had to wear white stockings and low shoes all the time, or I would not be able to work.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura and I decided to try them. I used one cake of Cuticura Soap and part of a box of Cuticura Ointment when I was healed." (Signed) Miss Elsie Gordon, 31 Waite St., Springfield, Mass., July 26, 1918.

THE STAGE

—By F. J. McIsaac—

BIG FILM PLAYS FLOCK TO BOSTON

Man is an eccentric animal. Also inconsistant. Why is it that he won't go near a theatre where a comedy or musical show is playing in the summer time on the grounds that it is too hot, but will go to the same theatre to see a motion picture despite the temperature?

For several seasons now a flock of motion pictures have pounced upon the legitimate theatres the instant sulphreshing summer caused the legitimate attractions to flit.

It must be just as hot watching a motion picture in July as looking at a musical comedy, but the public doesn't seem to think so.

Next Monday the Griffith repertory, a new departure in the film business, takes possession of the Colonial, scene of the triumphs of Fred Stone and the Follies. A series of Griffith masterpieces is to be shown there week by week.

The following week the Majestic will house a picture called "The Unpardonable Sin," based upon Rupert Hughes' novel which was so popular last season. "The Eyes of the World," will give place to a film entitled "Open Your Eyes" at the Shubert. A horde of picture people are trying to show "Flo Flo" out of the Tremont, but Flo Flo appears to have captured Boston and won't budge.

An Impolite Paragraph.

How old is Nora Bayes?

That is a question you often hear asked, and the answers are various.

"Let's see," says one. "Nora was well known in vaudeville when I was a kid, and I'm no chicken.

"She must be about fifty," remarks another. "Sure she is fifty."

The irrepressible Nora smiles when you ask her to tell her exact age. She does not get mad, as some women do, she just smiles.

"Figure it out yourself," says Nora. "I'll start you off by telling you I went on the stage when I was seventeen years old."

That was in Chicago at a little repertoire house where they sandwiched singing and dancing turns between acts. Nora sang a couple of simple little ballads and evidently sang them well, for after the first week she demanded a raise—she was getting $15—and it was refused. Nora quit, learned some more songs and got a better job at higher wages. She sang her way as far as Cairo, Ill., and back to Chicago again. Nora was anxious to get to New York and she appealed to Harry J. Davis, the Chicago theatrical man who died last week, to help her. Mr. Davis believed that Miss Bayes had a great future before her and he told Klaw and Erlanger about it in a letter. Nora delivered the letter in person and she got a job—in the chorus. She stayed there a week. Then her voice lifted her into a speaking part.

Nora kept her eyes and ears open and saw how things were done in the big town and in a first class production. It didn't take her long to decide that her forte was the vaudeville field. Everyone knows the success she has made on the two occasions she was a top-liner and probably always will remain one as long as she cares to work. But running her own show is more to Nora's liking. She is her own boss and is making more money now than she ever made before and she is happy.

Nora's age? Well, if you are really interested you might find it if you searched diligently in the birth statistics of a Middle Western city, under a name not used by Bayes. But your search was unsuccessful you might be surprised to find that Nora is on the sunny side of thirty-five.

Sullivan Operas Fresh as Ever.

Boston's musical taste, which oftentimes gets some left-handed compliments, is vindicated by the hearty support given the Gilbert and Sullivan Revivals at the Plymouth.

The house has been packed at nearly all performances and the audiences have enjoyed themselves hugely. Second at the top of the orchestra during part of an act of "Mikado" the night ago, and I assure you the shrieks of laughter and roars of applause which came from the audience were quite as genuine and hearty as would greet the best new musical show of the highest class.

Sullivan's music, when played by a good orchestra and sung by good principals, is as sparkling and delicious today as it was a generation ago. Furthermore, the scores of "Mikado, Pinafore, Iolanthe" and "Pirates of Penzance, and Patience are far more meritorious as pure music than most of the popular Italian grand operas.

The reason they have not joined the repertory of the leading companies is that they require good acting as well as good singing, and a type of comedy job is quite out of the range of any grand opera singers that I know.

The stage at the Plymouth sings acceptably and tunefully, the chorus is rapid and the orchestra excellent. You may never get another opportunity to hear Gilbert and Sullivan so well done.

Vocal Pedal Gestures.

At Jolson's imitation of John McCormack last Sunday night turned out to be a big flop. Jolson sang nearly a score of songs, talked his head off, forgot all about Boston blue laws and slipped into a few dancing steps.

A large Boston policeman started for the stage when Jolson began to step, but encountered the bulk of A. Toxen Worm, the manager of the star.

"He's got to stop that. That's rancin'," declared the cop.

"Nothin' of the kind," replied Worm as he gripped the bluecoat tightly by the arm. "Those are Vocal Pedal gestures."

And he wasn't so far wrong. Jolson gestures with his feet as well as his hands. He is irrepressable. Fortunately, he remembered to refrain, or the gendarme would not have consented to any more of them.

"Sinbad" continues to draw vast throngs. It's a big show with a lot of clever people in it, but the pulling qualities it evidences are simply due to Jolson and nobody else. The American people does love a star when it loves one.

Wagner in Again.

Wagner is beginning to figure importantly upon the Pops program. The audiences receive him politely and there are no casualties. Personally, I never believed in excluding dead German composers from concert programs provided their music was the sort which gives pleasure. The only bad feature of letting them in again is the satisfaction it gives the irrepressible Huns, of whom we have a few in our midst. They seem to think that a Wagner overture on our programs is some sort of a "Victory" for the Fatherland.

Now that we have our heel upon the neck of the German Michael I suppose we ought to disregard the hissing of the German geese in our midst, but it is exasperating. An even better argument against Wagner on Pops programs is that Mr. Jacchia is making them heavy enough without him.

There is altogether too much symphonic music on these programs. An audience which is gobbling ice cream, guzzling ginger ale and lemonade and smoking cigarettes is not in the proper frame of mind to be diverted by the Symphony. Pathetique of Tschaikowsky, the prelude to Tristan, and even the lively movement from Beethoven's Heroic Symphony.

And it is not fair to the symphonies to play them under such conditions. Jacchia was not brought here to conduct symphonies. More operettas and more ragtime, Mr. Jacchia.

Wild Girls.

"Flo-Flo" boasts of the only comedy chorus in captivity. That is, they are intentionally comic. We have seen choruses which were unconsciously comic, but not the "perfect 36" coterie. I know there are some readers who will take me to task and say with criticism incisive that there hadn't me such animile as a comedy chorus, but there was it wouldn't be a chorus. John Cort did a daring thing when he allowed his chorus to run wild during the singing of a certain song in the production. Of course, there have been choruses that have run wild before this, but that has been outside of business hours, usually.

The song in question is "I Don't Know What You See In Me," and the chorus, not content with wearing pretty apparel agreeably, what there is of it, and that sometimes is the appeal in it, for some folks, strutting spiritedly and dancing ardently, as some choruses will, sometimes not content with doing these ordinary things well, they smash all musical comedy traditions by cutting up capers, and right comically, too.

Moreover, they display an intimation, not to say a Chinglesque slap that betrays an appreciation of comedy values. They appear to thoroughly enjoy this freedom from the conventional plodding of animated mannikins as they cut agents of the merry-merry. At any rate, their pleasure spreads infectiously over the footlights and the audience appear to enjoy the diversion thoroughly.

Where to Go When It's Hot.

I have always insisted that a musical tromic could earn a good living by remaining in Boston all Summer making good productions of popular light operas. Dr. Carl Hunt, the house manager of the Plymouth, who came to Boston last Fall with a lot of enterprises packed in his trunk, feels so sure of it that he intends to operate a high-class musical stock at the Plymouth next Summer.

Dr. Hunt has engaged a first-class company, including a number of Broadway favorites, and several production rights on such recent hits as "Sybil," "Very Good Eddie," "Oh Lady, Lady," and other airy entertainments. He is having new settings constructed and the changes made and is directing the stage himself.

The city of Boston, which is ordinarily as lively in July as Limpsh, Scotland, will be a different place this summer, in addition to the Hunt company it looks as though Flo Flo might thrive on hot weather.

A Camel Will Have Nothing on Us.

Four years ago a scene in French life that lay between Louise Cook and Percival Knight at the Copley would have fallen as flat as a punctured tire. It shows how Americans have struggled with the French language since the war began, when five minutes' conversation, even in such elementary French as is used on the stage brings peal after peal of laughter.

Mr. Knight in his nasty search for a girl who becomes engaged to a French girl who doesn't speak any English. All goes well until he calls her his little "cochon," not knowing what the word means. The translation is "pig," but to a French person it is the vilest insult possible to be called a pig. Stay there is one worse. If you want to have a Frenchman declare personal war call him a camel. Whether the insult is due to the shape of the beast or his faculty for going nine days without water I have never been able to find out.

Miss Cook is not a French girl. She came from Henry Ford's village, and she made her debut in "The Merry Widow."

Personal Experiences, Perhaps.

Clyde McArdle, who operates the Somerville Theatre, has put Somerville on the theatrical map with a vengeance by going out and securing Edmund Breese, the Broadway star, to head the production of "The Master Mind" at the Somerville Theatre next week. Mr. Breese was secured for Somerville by Joseph Di Pesa, who was responsible for the production in that city of two plays by Edward Harold Crosby. It is rumored that Mr. Di Pesa himself has a play in preparation based upon experiences in a service station with a used car.

Can't Beat the Irish.

Bernard Shaw's plays follow one another at brief intervals on the stage of the Copley Repertory Theatre. And there's a reason. The best reason of all, indeed for the public demands them. The first this season was "You Never Can Tell," which was revived after a successful presentation during the first season of the Henry Jewett Players at that house. Then came "The Doctor's dilemma," for the first time in Boston, and it was liked so well that it ran four weeks. A few weeks ago, another revival, "Arms and the Man," was given and now during the Greek week Shaw's "Candida also will be the bill. Mr. Jewett has also given "Man and Superman" and "The Philanderers" at the Copley. The only other playwright who has had more than one play acted on the Copley stage this season is Sir Arthur Pinero, with "The Magistrate" and "The Thunderbolt."

PLYMOUTH THEATRE

Mr. Carl Hunt has leased the Plymouth Theatre for the Summer and on Monday, June 2, will begin a revival of the most successful musical comedies of the past few seasons, each to be played one week only.

His first offering will be Comstock-Elliot company's greatest success, "Oh Boy!" which holds the Boston record for long runs, having played at the Wilbur Theatre over 189 consecutive performances. This will be followed by "Very Good Eddie," "Katinka," "Adele," "The Only Girl," "Madame Sherry" and others, there being interspersed from time to time with an entirely new musical play by leading playwrights and composers. For this Mr. Hunt has elected a company of players, the personnel of which is most familiar. Dorothy Maynard heads the list, which includes Hugh Cameron, Walter Woolf, Lenore Chimpendale and others besided a remarkable chorus of young, beautiful, graceful girls.

"Oh Boy" was written by Guy Bolton and P. G. Wodehouse, with music by Jerome Kern. It has a story of lively interest and charming music. Who has not heard, and longs to hear again the haunting melody of "An Old-Fashioned Wife," "Till the Clouds Roll By," "Nesting Time" and "You Never Knew About Me"?

COLONIAL THEATRE

Beginning next Wednesday night and continuing with performances twice daily thereafter, D. W. Griffith will inaugurate a Spring season of photoplays produced by him at the Colonial Theatre. This is a decided innovation in Boston theatricals, and this city will be one of a chain of similar cities which will see the same attraction. The first production to be shown is entitled "Broken Blossoms," which was founded upon Thomas Burke's stories from his book, "Limehouse Nights."

D. W. Griffith has always been an innovator in cinema producing. His evolutionary ideas being conspicuous for their work as advancements and dignifying qualities which influenced the industry of screen producing. The string of his particular achievements appears to be the naming of every particular means of advancing the art, and his new method of presenting his new productions promises a like reception and accomplishment.

"Broken Blossoms" is described as an oriental romance. Thomas Burke is one of the newer writers, whose work has caused the most profound sensation in the literary and reading world.

COPLEY THEATRE

When Mr. Jewett gave Bernard Shaw's "Candida" at the Copley Theatre during his first season there 16th the play and the performance met with a huge success. He will now revive it for a single week, beginning next Monday evening, and it promises a popularity equal to that of its first presentation at that house. "Candida" was one of the first of Shaw plays to be acted in this country, and it has remained ever since one of his most poplar comedies.

"Candida" is typical Shaw with all his best satire and his most effervescent humor. Its story involves only a few characters, and they are all drawn with Shaw's surest and surest touch.

The cast will include Viola Roach as Proserpine, Jessamine Newcombe as "Candida," Cameron Matthews as Morell, James Hart Morell, E. E. Clive as the Rev. Alexander Mills, Fred W. Permain as Mr. Burgess and Leonard Craske as Eugene Marchbanks, the poet.

ARLINGTON THEATRE

Nothing as interesting and as novel as "Which One Shall I Marry?" has been shown on the stage of the Arlington Theatre in many a day. Its author, Ralph T. Kettering, has in it originated and developed a brand new idea. His opening scene is in the form of an allegory. The young girl around whom the plot centres is discovered at the cross-roads of life, where a mysterious personage names "Good Advice" to her to point out a successful future. It is this future that is revealed to the audience during the remainder of the play.

The question that confronts the heroine in the problem in the title of the play, "Which One Shall I Marry?" She is sought by a rich man and a poor man. The first offers her everything that money can buy, while the second can promise her nothing but love. With the scene changing quickly to her home, the story of her life begins. At the end of the scene she falls upon her knees and prays that her future as it would be if she married either of these men be shown her.

To disclose the remainder of the plot and the story of the play would be to tell too much.

SELLS-FLOTO

Boston circus lovers—and they are numbered by the thousands—promise to be vastly entertained with the Sells-Floto circus exhibits on the old Huntington avenue circus grounds next week.

The show arrived Sunday, coming from Montreal, after a short but remarkably successful Canadian tour, and the initial performances will be given Monday afternoon and night. There will, of course, be a street parade on the opening day. This will leave the grounds shortly before 11 o'clock and will cover the usual downtown route.

There is undoubtedly a great deal of interest in the coming of the Sells-Floto circus. Its reputation as a modern, up-to-date show, presented with a vim and smartness unusual even with the best of the circuses of other days, has preceded it, and a successful week for this new aspirant for popular favor is anticipated.

While the Sells-Floto show is a big circus, it does not, apparently, base its claims to distinction on mere magnitude. It has, it is announced, three rings, but so far as possible the same kind of a performance is presented in the rings simultaneously, and this is a great aid in watching and enjoying the various arenic numbers.

JOE DI PESA'S CONCERT

With such stars of the theatre world as Edmund Breese, Denman Maley and Mary Desmond, the program of the concert to be given by Joseph A. Di Pesa and Nicholas Petrofield at the Park Square Theatre tonight should be reckoned as having the most powerful of appeal to the many friends of these gentlemen as well as to those who seek good Sunday night show amusement. Mr. Breese will offer several dramatic recitations. Mr. Maley of the "Among the Girls" company and well known in many a big production as a sterling comedian will present a comedy monologue; Mary Desmond, the famous English contralto and former member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will sing a number of selected songs. Others to appear are Charles R. Sweet, the musical burglar; Winkler and Dean, in songs, comedy and pianologue; Grindell and Esther, in songs and comedy; Fitzsher and Woods, rogodians; George Hall, character comedian; Mahoney and Pendergast, in songs; Eileen and Sefton; the Snyder Trio, and others.

McISAAC says that

NORA BAYES, in her amusing version of "A Contented Woman" which she calls "Ladies First," sings a group of songs in the second act which alone are worth the price of admission. And Irving Fisher, a high baritone of class, makes this a singing show of unusual character.

"FLO FLO," John Cort's high-toned burlesque show, and lingerie display, has displayed very surprising staying qualities, and may be with us until mid-Summer. People like it.

GILBERT AND SULLIVAN at the Plymouth is a rare treat. The productions are very well done, the company, with one or two exceptions, the best which has offered these operettas for years. Next week "The Gondoliers" and "Mikado" will be the offerings.

"AMONG THE GIRLS," the new Selwyn musical comedy at the Park Square which is headed by Percival Knight and Denman Maley, is rapidly rounding into a first-class entertainment. It is an elaborate production, with lots of bright music, singing and dancing.

AL JOLSON begins his sixth week next Monday in "Sinbad" at the Boston Opera House. Up to the present time he has played to more people than usually go to the Boston Opera House in a couple of years.

"THE BIRD OF PARADISE" winds its Boston engagement up next week. This is likely to be the last chance to see one of the most popular plays in a dozen years. Majestic.

"EYES OF THE WORLD," the big feature film basod upon Harold Bell Wright's novel, remains one more week only at the Shubert. It is well worth a visit.

D.W. GRIFFITH REPERTORY SEASON

Out from the far places he comes once each year, bringing with him the matchless treasure of his long labor.

Up from the South with "THE BIRTH OF A NATION," the most popular dramatic entertainment ever created.

Then from Babylon and glorified Palestine with "INTOLERANCE," the mightiest spectacle man ever has conceived.

Last from the Fields of Flanders with "HEARTS OF THE WORLD," the epic of the war made for the French and British Governments.

And now, from London and China, DAVID WARK GRIFFITH brings for its first showing to the world

"BROKEN BLOSSOMS"

As startling an advancement in the cinema art as were the other triumphs of this world genius.

A drama of profound emotion, of exquisite delicacy, of terrific strength.

ATTRACTIONS AT THEATRES IN BOSTON

KEITH'S THEATRE

Edna Goodrich, the dazzling beauty of society, the stage and the screen, will appear as the headliner at Keith's next week in Edgar Allen Woolf's newest one-act play, "The Mannequin".

Miss Goodrich, although one of the best actresses in America, also gained for herself international fame by being one of the many wives of the late Nat Goodwin.

The rest of the bill includes Joe Towle in a new comedy act, Lou Holtz, the clever comedy star, in a bright and breezy program; Will J. Ward and six symphony girls in a delightful medley of songs, comedy and dances.

LEOFFLER CONCERT

A concert that promises more than ordinary interest is announced by Mr C. M. Leoffler to be given Wednesday evening, June 4, in Medfield (where the composer resides), the proceeds to be for the benefit of devastated France. Mr. Leoffler will give the concert in the Unitarian Church at Medfield, and has secured the services of Mme. Povla Frijsh, the Danish concert singer of excellent repute; Mr. Heinrich Gebhard, the pianist, and Mr. Albert W. Snow, the organist of Emanuel. An orchestra, trained at the hand of Mr. Leoffler, will assist.

PATHOS AND THRILLS IN "UNPARDONABLE SIN"

Scene from "The Unpardonable Sin," billed for a long Summer run at the Majestic Theatre.

What has been heralded as surpassing any previous moving picture event in the history of Boston is announced for June 2, when "The Unpardonable Sin," the screen version of Major Rupert Hughes' novel of that name, will begin what is expected to be a long run at the Majestic Theatre. Blanche Sweet, one of the greatest film favorites of the day, will be seen in the leading role.

It may be recalled that soon after the book had been published by Harper & Brothers it was endorsed by the late Theodore Roosevelt in the controversy with the management of the New York Public Library. Since that time, in film form, it has been endorsed by the thousands of patrons of motion picture houses in different parts of the country, although it will have its first New England showing here in Boston.

Those whose tastes run to stories of love and romance will find in "The Unpardonable Sin" a pictured narrative of sentiment and devotion that will compare favorably with anything that they can recall. Those who get most pleasure from the thrills of a motion play will conjure up once more the days of the Drury Lane productions. Those who would rather cry than smile will find pathos aplenty.

The exceptional work of Blanche Sweet in this play is a great feature of it. Miss Sweet trained in the old school of screen acting, when versatility was essential, and won her spurs under the tutelage of David Wark Griffith.

MODERN THEATRE

Another of Rex Beach's virile stories makes transition from the printed page to the screen, and throughout the week at the Modern Theatre there will be given the first unveiling of the pictured "The Crimson Gardenia." As its readers may remember, the locale of the story is in New Orleans at Mardi Gras time, when its hero, a young man of wealth, there to enjoy the festival, separates himself from his companions and seeks adventure alone. Masked, he meets a young woman searching for her cousin whom she has never seen. He joins in the search, his badge of recognition being a black domino and crimson gardenia. Subsequent events reveal that he has let himself in for experiences more serious than he had imagined, but like a knight of old he perseveres upon his project, the spirit of romance carrying him on to victorious accomplishment. A cast headed by Owen Moore and Hedda Nova has been pictured in the roles. The accompanying photoplay will be "I'll Get Him Yet," picturing Dorothy Gish, the story of which tells about an energetic young woman reporter who condemns the money class, and because of this she has to hide her real position.

PEMBERTON INN

Airplane trips between courses! Airplane trips between courses. Airplane stunts while you dine! This, the latest thing in Twentieth Century dining, will be a feature, beginning tomorrow at the Pemberton Inn, the South Shore's dining place de luxe. Incidentally, Pemberton Inn, so far as can be ascertained, is the first dining place in the world to offer its patrons a chance to fly between courses. Through arrangements made with the New England Airplane Company a Curtiss "J" seaplane, navigated by an experienced pilot, will take passengers from the water directly in front of the inn, speed them on trips about the sea and shore, and return them to the water.

The trips enable patrons of the charming dining place, not only to make flights themselves, but also to look on while acquaintances "take the air."

Of course the extraordinary feature will not be the only one to attract patrons to the well known inn. Lovers of delicious food have long since learned the virtues of the inn. The Banjo Harmony Boys, dispensers of music for every form from grand opera to jazz, will entertain daily.

BEACON THEATRE

Adventure of different qualities is prevalent in the two first-run photoplays that will be shown through the week at the Beacon Theatre. That contained in "The Crimson Gardenia" is of the suspenseful, thrilling kind, which the fact that it is a screen translation of Rex Beach's popular story of like title will give conviction. This story relates of the adventures of a young man who has gone to New Orleans to attend the Mardi Gras and in masking meets with a young woman similarly attired whose mission is to meet a cousin she has never seen. This brings consequences that quickly assume seriousness and entail many a thrilling experience. The other photoplay will show Dorothy Gish in "I'll Get Him Yet."

SALISBURY A GENIUS IN FILM ROLE

Gives Marvelous Portrayal of Part in "Eye of the World"

Before playing the part of Conrad LaGrange, in "Eyes of the World," at the Shubert, Monroe Salisbury made a careful study of the character in Harold Bell Wright's famous book of that name.

Carefully reading between the lines, Salisbury saw the artist, made a genius like unto the genius of love that was never realized, in youth.

Had this love blossomed forth, LaGrange might have still been the newspaper editor he was when it entered his life, but grief and disappointment had opened another door to him, which led onward and upward, but alone.

So, in his early middle age, he is seen as the famous author who can look the whole world in the face and scornfully smile in sympathy at the "littleness" therein.

Memory no less than hope, owes its charm to the far away, and in the son of the woman he once loved LaGrange sees once again the hopes of his youth born again in this boy. With the fondness and tenderness of a father he devotes by the boy's side, striving to help and encourage him. In the end he is gratified to see the boy and the girl, happy in each other's embrace, leaving him once more alone with unforgetable memories.

All this Salisbury saw and interpreted on the silver sheet. No one but a genius could have done it and to analyze the work of a genius is to arrive nowhere, so we will remain silent, grateful that in the world of shadows there is such a man, when we must call by the commonplace name of actor.

Escaped the Bolsheviki.

The problem of costuming the various characters in Rex Beach's "The Crimson Gardenia," was a matter of considerable concern to all the players at the studios. To Hedda Nova in particular it meant much, and to Owen Moore and all the other members of the distinguished cast. The accompanying photoplay will be "I'll Get Him Yet," picturing Dorothy Gish, the story of which tells about an energetic young woman reporter who condemns the money class, and because of this she has to hide her real position.

Importance of Details.

Not a little has been written of the care with which modern photoplay productions are made. When one sees reproduced before him on the screen a series of incidents which combine to tell a dramatic story it is easy enough to forget the myriad of little things which the producer and his staff have had to think of in order that the representation shall be true to life. Quite naturally the interest centres in what the characters are doing, and as long as there is nothing in the picture atmosphere to jar this mass of detail is forgotten. But let some little apparently unimportant fitting be something other than it should be and the whole effect is destroyed.

The average theatregoer knows but little of the difference between the costumes, architectural peculiarities, etc., of one country and another—but in every audience there are sure to be some spectators whose first-hand knowledge of the scenes represented is likely to make them more captious critics along these lines than the producer of the picture himself.

And the success of a big photoplay depends almost entirely upon the impression which the detail of the production makes upon these comparatively few people, who, by the way, are the ones who talk loudest either in praise or denunciation.

HANK GOWDY DAY AT WIGWAM, PETERS PRESENTS GIFT

before he started catching, a solid gold watch, chain and cigar cutter, as well as some $600 worth of Victory Bonds. That showed what the fans thought of Hank in the American's great contest.

The girl was made up of hundreds of contributions from the myriad friends of the sorrel topped doughboy and catcher. It was the finest personal tribute ever paid any athlete in this city. And the best of it, it was more than deserved.

Then, Hammering Harry received a lot of other things. His fellow players had chipped in to help along the great day. They presented him a big traveling trunk, something to store his fine raiment in, after he starts collecting on his new contract, which is quite a bit larger than the one he had with Uncle Sam.

ALL ROOTING FOR HANK.

Friends in the army also, did honor to Hank, as well as several of his personal pals in this section. He was once again baseball's biggest hero, as he has been ever since 1914.

Here's Hank's ante-battle statement: (We have excluded the sections where in he heartfully protests against all the publicity he is to get):

"The old ball feels just the same, and I've got my eye on it again. I'm not likely to stop a curve, or a fast one, with my protector. And I can look them over up there at the bat, in practice anyhow. You never can tell whether or not you'll come through, but if confidence helps any, then I'll be in there from now out.

THANKS THE AMERICAN.

"I appreciate what the fans and the American have done for me, and, believe me, I'll try to repay them by helping the old team along. We haven't had much luck yet, but we have a lot coming. Here's hoping I can start things off."

That's as much as Hank ever says about anything in which he's intimately concerned. He has the habit of doing, rather than talking, real things.

But all baseball was up for him today, paying him small meed of the honor that is his. It was a great crowd and a great day for a great player and greater character.

SOX BIDDING FOR BOBBY VEACH AND DAUSS

Detroit, May 24.—Harry H. Frazee, owner of the Red Sox, held a long conference here early today with Frank Navin and Hugh Jennings, the big men behind the Tigers.

"Nothing to give out," was President Navin's statement to the scribes when the confab broke up.

Frazee wants Bobby Veach. That's a know fact. However, to hear Jennings tell it, the Boston magnate has just as much chance of acquiring Veach, unless willing to swap Babe Ruth even up, as he has to get King Tyrus Cobb.

George Dauss, too, is wanted by Frazee. He has a chance to acquire the right-hander, if he makes anything like a rollicking offer, it is rumored, as the Red Sox are about the only team he has whipped with any great regularity of late years.

Carl May's was programmed to hurl the getaway day game against the Tigers. Ehmke was Jennings' first pick, but Hugh may switch to Dauss or Southpaw Willie Mitchell at game time.

Baseball News and Notes

The only American League game gave Eddie Cicotte another chance to add a victory to his already imposing record. Eddie is winning so consistently one does not wonder that the players on the other teams are claiming he has found something new to put on the ball.

* * *

The Phillies evidently made a good trade when they let Demmitt go to the Giants. George Smith, who was swapped for him, celebrated his Quaker debut by downing the Cubs. Fred Mitchell is sure having a tough time in the East.

* * *

Jim Thorpe, supposed-to-be new Braves backfield star, has intention of waiting to hear about terms before joining the club. If that's the way he feels he will probably spend the Summer at his home in Oklahoma.

* * *

Just as soon as Owner Grant heard that Davey Robertson was on the outs with McGraw, he got on the trail of the hard-hitting outfielder once more. He has wired Owner Stoneham for permission to dicker with the player, who has retired once again.

* * *

Those Giants have the luck, as well as the class. Benton was battered for sixteen hits by the Cardinals, but managed to win his game, 7-6. A four-run surge against Doak netted

CLARK GRIFFITH has been in baseball longer than the baseballs have been in it. When Clark horned into the game the outfielders wore high hats. Clark's favorite pastime is scrapping with Cornelius MacGillicuddy. When they get plenty sore Connie remembers that Clark's grandfather was a professional mourner in the old country. Clark remembers that Connie's grandpop was chased out of the Emerald Isle for swiping sheep. From there they gradually work up to the climax, leave the grandpops flat and start buzzzing about their grandsons.

TECH FIELD IS SCENE OF N.E. TITLE MEET

The annual New England Intercollegiate A. A. track and field championships, up for decision on Tech Field, Cambridge, this afternoon, attracted all the speedboys. In all, eighteen colleges are represented.

The individual number of competitors was in excess of 100; not a single important entrant was an absentee and it looked like the big show would be equally as successful as any that preceded it in pre-war times.

Tech has proven pre-eminent in the past, having gained three victories and with another triumph looming up as almost a certainty, the beautiful silver cup offered by Major Frank Briggs to the college winning the most points in eight years, will in all probability rest within the walls of the Cambridge institution.

Here's the pick of the good ones:

100-yard dash—Keeler of Wesleyan, Rollins of Tech, Goldstein of Trinity, Holbrook of Bowdoin, Dempsey of Boston College, Sullivan of Massachusetts Agricultural.

200-yard dash—Pratt of Maine, Spitz of Tech, Mullane of Brown, Macdia of Tufts. Bulk of best men entered in 100-yard dash will also compete in this event.

440-yard run—Bawden of Tech, (doubtful starter) Goldstein, Yeoas of Massachusetts Agricultural; O'Leary of New Hampshire State, Downey of Tech, L. Murphy of Brown, Driscoll of Boston College.

880-yard run—Bawden (doubtful starter) and Cowhin of Tech, Cleaves of Bowdoin, Brown of Williams, Harmon and Carlon of Boston College, Harden of Tech.

Mile run—Nightingale and Heath of New Hampshire State, Goodwin of Bowdoin, Jones of Middlebury, Brown of Williams, Cummings of Boston College, Purcell of Tech. Same field with Murray of Tech, best in two-mile run.

Low hurdles—Savage and Higgins of Bowdoin; Scranton of Tech; Thompson of Brown.

High hurdles—J. Sullivan of Boston College; Mills of Tech; Fitts and Fitch of Tufts, Thompson, Higgins.

Hammer throw—Elms and Caspar of Bowdoin; Dandrow of Tech; McNamara of Boston College.

Broad-jump—Johnson of Wesleyan; Besser of Brown; Dempsey of Boston College; Dippel and Clarke of Tech.

High jump—Newt of New Hampshire State; Ash and Pierce of Tech.

Shot-put—Nichols of Brown; Allen of Maine; Rollins of Tech.

Pole vault—Nagel and Walton of Tech; Newt.

Discus throw—Allen of Maine; Nichols, Boll of Tech; Elms and Caspar of Bowdoin.

Umpires—Dan Barry and Peter McLoughlin.

The Harvard and Princeton varsity baseball teams were to clash on Soldiers Field this afternoon in the second game of their series. Hardell was the Crimson's selection for said duty. He held the Tigers hitless for seven innings in last week's game at Princeton, only to lose out when his supporters wobbled.

Margetts, from the far west, was programmed to do the honors for the Tigers. The Jersey team is in town accompanied by a small, but noisy, band of rooters. Play at 2:30 o'clock.

Olcott Yale Freshman Coach

New Haven, Ct., May 24.—Herman P. Olcott, who played centre on Gordon Brown's famous 1901 football machine, has been appointed director of all the Blue's freshman teams. He signed a two-year contract.

DAN McCORMACK KAYOS NOONAN IN HURRY

By RINGSIDE.

Dan McCormack, East Boston lightweight, keeps on winning his ring engagements and he is convinced he will succeed in capturing the championship of New England in this division.

Johnny Noonan of Dorchester tried to stop the McCormack drive at the Commercial A. C. The only thing Lynn-wooded in stopping was a flock of punches. In the third frame Noonan was in such poor condition Referee Jack Sheehan halted festivities.

Noonan might have better success in the game of sewt if he got a couple of bouts with boys who were not determined to become champions. He recently received a reverse at the hands of Charley Parker, who is out to grab some kind of a title. McCormack has now topped into Battering Charles's class.

Freddie Duffy of Jamaica Plain did a sparkling come-back in his whirl with Paddy Flynn of Everett. Duffy showed some of the speed which made him a star in local rings five and six years ago. In the third round it looked as though he was beginning to tire. He surprised the fans, however, and made a splendid rally, which carried him to victory.

Joe Curry, New Haven lightweight, stopped Freddie Williams of Cambridge in nine rounds.

Brockton Show Called Off

Brockton, May 24.—The Farrington A. A. was "dark" owing to a sparse turnout of members. Chick West and Frankie Mack were to have met in the windup event.

Ertle Kayoed by Herman

SCHOOLBOY SPORTS

JOHN LYONS,
DORCHESTER HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL, BASEBALL AND TRACK.

JOHN LYONS has been prominent in athletics at Dorchester High School for the past three years. He captained last Fall's football eleven and was a member of the track team. He is taking his turn pitching on the nine this Spring. This is his last year at the high school and he will enter college in the Fall.

Next week will be a busy one for the school boys, with two days devoted to track and the other days to baseball. There are three games on the schedule of each team in the Suburban League.

* * *

Fred Sawyer will probably be called on to do the twirling in two games for Newton. If he comes through after working today, he will deserve a lot of credit.

* * *

Harold Mock, English High runner, will give Pete Walsh of Dorchester plenty of competition in the 100-yard event of the school meet, June 6. These two boys should have the race to themselves.

* * *

John Feeney, English High jumper, will be the only record-holder in the senior division at the varsity track and field meet. The way he is going right now points to another win for him.

* * *

HARVARD-TIGER TRACK MEET IN STADIUM

Harvard and Princeton were carded to meet in a track carnival this afternoon in the Stadium for the first time in the history of their dual athletic relations. Starting time was not until 4:15 o'clock.

The performers to watch out for were Captain Bill Moore of Harvard, who was a top notch favorite for a double triumph in the sprints; Denny O'Connell of Dorchester, in the half and mile.

George Krogness and Ned Gourdin, Harvard's all-around performers; peerless Captain Erdman of Princeton, without an equal in the intercollegiate hurdles pasture; Lee Terrell, the Tiger's long suit man; McCulloch, the visitors' nifty two-miler. The events:

120-yard hurdles — Harvard, Atkinson, Krogness, Rose, Ryan, Stevenson, Treat; Princeton, Erdman, Brokaw, Jones, Twomey, Briggs.

This Day in History—May 24, 1919

THIS is the anniversary of the sailing, in 1850, of the relief expedition financed by Henry Grinnell to find the Arctic explorer Sir John Franklin. Grinnell sent a second expedition in 1852 and did all he could with the British searchers to discover the fate of Sir John. The fact of Franklin's death was not proved, however, until 1859.

The Eagles of Napoleon

NAPOLEON revived the ancient symbol of the Caesars. The Napoleonic eagle itself was eight inches in height and nine inches across the wings. It stood on a brass block three inches square, and weighed 3½ pounds. Modern colors are as nothing compared to the old one, as difficult to hide as the big drum.

THE DARK STAR

THRILLING ROMANCE OF AN AMERICAN GIRL

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

One of the Newest and Best Novels of Intrigue, Love and War From This Famous Author's Pen, Full of Vivid Human Interest

Copyright 1917, by Robert W. Chambers

SHE leaned forward and kissed the girl's hair where it was fine and blond, close to the snowy forehead.

"If war comes," she said, "you and James will have to go home, like two good children when the curfew rings."

She laughed, pushed Rue away, lighted another cigarette, and, casting a glance partly ironical, partly provocative, at the good-looking young man on the sofa, said:

"As for you, James, I don't worry about you. Impudence will always carry you through where diplomacy fails you. Now, tell me all about these three unpleasant sporting characters who occupied the train with you."

Neeland laughed.

"It seems that a well-known gambler in New York, called Captain Quint, is backing them; and somebody higher up is backing Quint—"

"Probably the Turkish Embassy at Washington," interposed the Princess, coolly. "I'm sorry, Jimmy go on."

Turkish Embassy

"The Turkish Embassy!" he repeated, surprised that she should guess.

"Yes, and the German Embassy is backing that. There you are, Jim. That is the sequence as far as your friend, Captain Quint. Now, who comes next in the scale?"

"This man—Brandes—and the little chalk-faced creature, Still; and the other one, with the fox face—Doc Curfoot."

"I see. And then—"

"Then, as I gathered, there are several gentlemen wearing Teutonic names—who are to go into partnership with them—one named Kestner, one called Theodore Weisheim, and an exceedingly oily Eurasian gentleman with whom I became acquainted on the Volhynia—one Karl Breslau——"

"Breslau!" exclaimed the Princess. "Now I understand."

"Who is he, Princess?"

"He is the most notorious international spy in the world—a person to individual with aliases, professions and experiences sufficient for an entire jail full of criminals. His father was a German Jew; his mother a Circassian girl; he was educated in Germany, France, Italy and England. He has been a member of the Socialist group in the Reigstag under one name, a member of the British Parliament under another; he did dirty work for Abdul Hamid; dirtier for Enver Bey.

"He is here, there, everywhere; he turns up in Brazil one day, and is next in evidence in Moscow. What he is so eternally about God only knows; what chancellery he served, which he betrays, is a question that occupies many uneasy minds this very hour, I fancy.

"But of this I personally am now satisfied: Karl Breslau is responsible for the robbery of your papers today, and the entire affair was accomplished under his direction!"

"And yet I know," said Neeland, "that after he and Kestner tried to blow up the captain's cabin and the bridge aboard the Volhynia yesterday morning at a little after 8 o'clock, he and Kestner must have jumped overboard in the Mersey River off Liverpool."

"Without doubt a boat was watching your ship."

"Yes; Weisheim had a fishing smack to pick them up. Ilse Dumont must have gone with them, too."

"All they had to do was to touch at some dock, go ashore, and telegraph to their men here," said the Princess.

"That, evidently, is what they did," admitted Neeland ruefully.

"Certainly. And by this time they may be here, too. They could do it. I haven't any doubt that Breslau, Kestner and Ilse Dumont are here in Paris at this moment."

"Then I'll wager I know where they are!"

"Where?"

"In the Hotel des Bulgars, rue Vilna. That's where they are to operate a gaming house. That is where they expect to plunk and fleece the callow and the aged who may have anything of political importance about them worth stealing. That is their plan. Agents, officials, employes of all consulates, legations and embassies are what they're really after. I heard them discussing it there in the train today."

The Princess had fallen very silent, musing, watching Neeland's animated face as he detailed his knowledge of what had occurred.

Careful of Police

"Why not notify the police?" he added. "There might be a chance to recover the box and the papers."

The Princess shook her pretty head.

"We have to be very careful how we use the police, James. It seems simple, but it is not. I can't explain the reasons, but we usually pit spy against spy and keep very clear of the police. Otherwise," she added, smiling, "there would be the deuce to pay among the embassies and legations." She added: "It's a most depressing situation! I don't exactly know what to do. . . . I have letters to write, anyway——"

She rose, turned to Rue and took both her hands:

"No; you must go back to New York and to your painting and music if there is to be war in Europe. But you have had a taste of what goes on in certain circles here; you have seen what a chain of consequences ensue from a chance remark of a young girl at a dinner table."

"Yes."

"It's amusing, isn't it? A careless and innocent word to that old busybody, Ahmed Mirza Saab, at my table—that began it. Then another word to Izzet Bey. And I had scarcely time to realize what had happened—barely time to telegraph James in New York—before their entire underground machinery was set in motion to seize those wretched papers in Brookhollow!"

Neeland said:

"You don't know even yet, Princess, how amazingly fast that machinery worked."

"Tell me how, James. I have time enough to write my warning since it is already too late." And she seated herself on the sofa and drew Rue beside her.

"Listen, dear," she said with pretty mockery, "here is a most worthy young man who is simply dying to let us know how picturesque a man can be when he tries to!"

Neeland laughed:

"The only trouble with me," he retorted, "is that I'm a rather hopeless habit of telling the truth. Otherwise there'd be some chance for me as a hero in what I'm going to tell you."

And he began with his first encounter with Ilse Dumont in Rue Carew's house at Brookhollow. After he had been speaking for less than a minute, Rue Carew's hands tightened in the clasp of the Princess Nala, who glanced at the girl and noticed that she had lost her color.

And Neeland continued his partly playful, partly serious narrative of "moving accidents by flood and field," aware of the girl's deep, breathless interest, aware that it, and, conscious of it, the more inclined to avoid the picturesque and heroic, and almost ashamed to talk of himself at all under the serious beauty of the girl's clear eyes.

But he could scarcely tell his tale and avoid mentioning himself; he was the centre of it all, the focus of the darts of Fate, and there was no getting away from happened to him.

So he made the melodrama a comedy, and the moments of deadly peril he treated lightly. And one thing he avoided altogether, and that was how he had kissed Ilse Dumont.

When he finished his account of his dreadful situation in the stateroom of Ilse Dumont and how at the last second her unerring shots had shattered the bomb clock, cut the guy-rope, and smashed the water-jug which quenched the burning fuses, he added with a very genuine laugh:

"If only some photographer had taken a few hundred feet of film for me I would retire on an income in a year and never do another stroke of honest work!"

The Princess smiled, mechanically; but Rue Carew dropped her white face on the Princess Nala's shoulder as though suddenly fatigued.

Keeping Up the Home

By Loretto C. Lynch

"NEVER own a house," counselled Mrs. Meyers, as her friend Mrs. Brown was complaining about the unfailing high rents. "Why, just think of it" she continued. "Not only have we to pay higher taxes this year, but I had to paint the whole house throughout the house; we had to have almost an entire new roof. Then there was the chimney to be rebuilt and the ladders to be replaced. And I just thought that I had finished paying out when I find the house requiring new awnings and new screens."

But there were some things that Mrs. Meyers did not tell. She did not say that she had lived in her house over ten years, and in all that time she had never given it any regular inspection for repairs. She had simply neglected and neglected until a hopelessly leaky roof finally demanded attention when the rain came pouring in, spoiling ceiling, wall paper, furniture and carpet.

Now, of course, there is the house occupied by the owner who is "out of luck" and is unable to make the necessary repairs, but this is not the average owner.

A young man who keeps his house repair cost down to a minimum told me his system. Regularly each month he gives a day or two to inspection. He does it in regular order. Sometimes his only note relates to door hinges. These may be squeaky and need regreasing. So he makes a note of it. Perhaps a brick in the chimney is getting a bit loose. This, if allowed to go on, may weaken the whole structure and necessitate an expensive repair later.

Every bit of the plumbing he goes over at least once a month. The electric wires and accessories, as well as the gas fixtures, he inspects. The upholstery and springs of the furniture and beds come in for their share of the inspection.

Last Fall this young owner noted that the fabric of the house awnings was worn out and could not be used again this Summer. And since he is a man of small means he has to plan repairs sometimes a bit ahead. He figured that with advance in prices, new fabric on the old frames would cost about fifty dollars. And so beginning last October he set aside seven dollars a month and along in May, when he was ready to have his awnings repaired, he had the repair money ready.

A woman will find it to her advantage to look over the interior of the house in somewhat the same manner. A neighbor told me the other day that she had so many things to buy for her home this month that it seemed as if she could not buy a single stitch of Spring clothing for herself.

She had to buy dishes—a lot of them—and glasses and sheets and towels, and innumerable other things. That was because she had let everything run out for over a year. Had she looked over her "open stock" dinner set each month, a short letter to the shop would have brought her the few pieces her careless maid had broken. Open stock has a number in vegetable shops and all one has to do is to mention the number and the pieces desired.

Then there is the matter of linens. If one adds one or two sheets or a few towels to the stock on hand, every time a good shop calls a sale, there never will be a time when everything wears out all together.

A friend who uses plated flat silverware told me that in recent years she has a dozen re-plated. Sometimes it is a dozen teaspoons that have begun to show marked signs of wear and sometimes it is soup knives and forks. A careful inspection of rugs each month will greatly lengthen their lives. A rug that is turned once a month will wear much more evenly than a rug that is left in one position year after year.

There is another matter it might be well to call to the attention and that is the matter of raising your rooms and their furnishings "evenly." One mother I knew had a very attractive dining room. In one corner of it there was a cosey desk and lamp. Of this room was one of those cold-looking music rooms which the family seldom entered. Two dining room rugs had been worn out while there was many years' use left in the music room rug. So she rearranged a bit and put the attractive desk and lamp as well as a table and some magazines into the music room. The dining room was relieved and the music room got a fairer share of wear and tear.

HEALTHY BOWELS

Nine-tenths of human sickness, from infancy to old age, comes from stomach or bowels being out of order.

Headaches, tired feeling, nervous depression, weakness, spots before the eyes, bad breath, sleeplessness, irritability, dizziness and many other signs of sickness arise if you treat the stomach and bowels right and get them into working order.

The prescription known as Dr. True's Elixir has done wonders for sick people, men, women and children, because it is the one remedy that you can rely on to set things right in the stomach and bowels.

Sold by all druggists, big or little, everywhere. Druggists, as a rule, are very honest. They do not try to substitute something else for Dr. True's Elixir, because they know its value. Many druggists use it in their own families.

Simple Waist and Evening Gown

For the bride here is an evening gown with a skirt of blue tulle over silver blue and satin. The waist, together with the girdle and the odd double train, is of turquoise blue satin.

The waist shown above is of white voile and one of its chief attractions is its moderate cost.

A Word to the Corpulent

By Brice Belden, M. D.

IT is entirely feasible to reduce excessive weight without employing dangerous drugs. Charlatans offering nostrums for sale for this purpose should be ignored, as what they dispense is either injurious or ineffective.

So anxious are the corpulent to regain normal proportions that they readily fall victims to the guarantees of the quacks, waste a lot of money and time and either get no results or dire ones.

Regulation of the diet is the key to the problem. Most fat people are fat because they have violated the laws of personal hygiene. They have not exercised sufficiently and they have eaten to excess of fats, sugars and starches.

The idea that with increasing age there is a natural tendency to grow stout is a fallacy. If we give our bodies proper care we retain our symmetry and grace. Those people who grow stouter as they grow older are indulging themselves dietetically and permitting their muscles to grow stale.

Nowadays many people are walking very little, and after they have lounged in their automobiles long enough their livers and hearts are partially converted into fat, and they wonder why their breathing is short and why diseases like diabetes make their appearance.

There is still a silly notion that those human museums of pathology are "pictures of health." Their camouflage does not deceive the physician and his blood pressure apparatus.

A right anti-fat diet must not be continued too long, as we thrive best upon a mixed diet. But the fats, starches and sugars should be reduced to a minimum.

Eliminate from the diet sweets, bread and butter, top milk, and potatoes, and begin systematic exercise in the open air. These measures alone will suffice in most cases. If they do not it is advisable to consult the physician.

A Misfit

A lady who prided herself on her literary tastes hailed the late Bret Harte with rapture when he was introduced to her. "I am so delighted to make your acquaintance, Mr. Harte!" she said. "I have read everything you ever wrote, and of all your dialect verses I think there is nothing better than your 'Little Breeches.'" "Madam," answered Bret Harte, "you have put a little breeches on the wrong man. They belong to Colonel John Hay!"

Nora: "Mine is locked up in the cupboard, where it shall stop until I am married, when I may bring it out for my children to play with." Edith: "What if you don't have any children?" Nora: "Well, then, in that case it will do for my grandchildren!"

Economical Recipes

CORN FLAKE HASH.

Two cupfuls cold meat cut into small pieces, 1 cupful corn flakes, 1 egg, ¼ to ½ cupful milk or stock, 8 large, cold cooked potatoes, 1 medium-sized onion, 1 teaspoonfuls salt, ⅛ teaspoonful pepper, 1 tablespoonful dripping.

Run through the medium-sized cutter or a food chopper the meat, potatoes and onion. Beat the egg and add the milk to it. Mix all the ingredients, moistening with the egg and milk. Fry in a pan in which drippings are melted. Serve on a platter garnished with parsley.

VEGETARIAN SCRAPPLE.

One cupful cornmeal, 1 medium-sized onion, 1 carrot, ½ green pepper, 2 teaspoonfuls salt, 1 cupful chopped peanuts.

Combine the cornmeal, chopped onion, carrot, green pepper and salt. Cook in 3½ cupfuls of boiling water until thick. Just before removing from the fire add the peanuts. Pour into a greased bread pan and let stand until thoroughly chilled. Remove from the mold, slice, dip in flour and saute. Serve with tomato or brown sauce.

SPICE CAKES WITH RICE

Put potatoes, fish and rice through a meat chopper to make smooth and to mix well. Add seasoning and form into cakes. This amount makes about twelve cakes.

LAMB WITH MACARONI.

One pound of lamb or mutton, cut into small pieces; half pound macaroni, two cupfuls milk, two tablespoonfuls margarin, two tablespoonfuls flour, two tablespoonfuls curry powder, one teaspoonful salt; one-quarter teaspoonful pepper.

Order lamb as for stewing, brown it in a hot skillet, add a small amount of water and cook until tender. Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water till tender; drain and pour cold water through it. In a saucepan melt the margarin, add the flour, curry powder, salt and pepper and blend thoroughly. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly, cook until a slightly thickened smooth sauce results. Into a greased casserole put a layer of macaroni, then a layer of lamb and curry sauce. Repeat till all is used. Cover and bake in a moderate oven about one hour.

SOMERVILLE MEAT LOAF.

One pound flank or round steak; 1 cup suet; 2 small onions; 1 cupful soft breadcrumbs; 2 teaspoonfuls salt; 2 tablespoonfuls Worcestershire sauce; 1 egg; 3 tablespoonfuls horseradish; ¼ teaspoonful dry mustard; 2 tablespoonfuls minced green pepper; ½ cupful tomato catsup.

Chop meat, suet and onions fine. Add breadcrumbs, egg slightly beaten, and all other ingredients except catsup. Pack into a greased bread-pan. Cover the top of the loaf with tomato catsup and bake one hour in a moderate oven. This loaf can be made with left-over meat and is delicious hot or cold.

SWEET POTATO BISCUIT.

Two cupfuls flour; 4 teaspoonfuls baking powder; 1 teaspoonful salt; 2 tablespoonfuls shortening; 2-3 cupful riced sweet potato; about ¾ cupful milk.

Sift together the dry ingredients, work in the shortening with two knives or the tips of the fingers. Add the milk until the dough is easily handled. Toss on a floured board and lightly kneed in the sweet potato. Roll to one-half inch thickness. Shape with a biscuit cutter. Place on a greased pan and bake in a hot oven twelve or fifteen minutes.

David DeLaine, War Hero, Is Left Fortune Provided He Marries a Certain Girl

"AND why not? Little girl, do not be so idealistic. That was just the reason I did not mention his past to you—for fear you would let sentiment run away with common sense. The fact that a man has been at the front does not mean that he is fitted to be a college president."

She colored at his rebuke. "I suppose I am over-romantic," she admitted.

"Well, don't be!" her father advised. "If a man is fitted to attain a certain position, he will attain it. But the fact that he has proved himself no slacker does not mean that he would not be happy as a chauffeur—or as a street cleaner, for that matter. He is just the same chap he was before he donned Uncle Sam's uniform."

"That reminds me," Desiree suggested. "Can't Smith have his livery soon? I hate to order about a man in the coat of the service."

"That's nonsense!" her father declared. "However, his overcoat is very shabby. Do I'll think about his livery—although I suppose I should wait until I get his references."

"I fancy his references will be all right," his daughter said quietly.

CHAPTER VIII.

ON the evening following Desiree's suggestion to her father with regard to David's livery, the employer had a talk with his chauffeur.

David had driven Mr. and Miss Leighton down to Carnegie. Here they attended a ball and had ordered that he come back at ten-forty-five. When he returned, the audience was just coming out of the hall and the crowd was so great that he had to wait for some minutes for his turn to drive up to the entrance. Once in front of the door, he stood waiting while his employer and his employer's daughter came from the building and crossed the sidewalk. With them was a young man who was chatting volubly.

"It has been a pleasure to see you again," he said, as he helped the girl into her car. "Good night!"

Lifting his hat, he drew back, and his eyes fell upon David's khaki-colored overcoat. He started slightly, as in surprise.

"Home, Smith," Mr. Leighton directed. Then, to the young man who still stood, his eyes fixed on David's face, he said, "Good night, Jefferson. We shall be happy to see you at our house whenever you come."

But the man did not reply. He was watching David as he started the car.

And David, feeling rather than seeing this scrutiny, pulled his cap down further over his face. He had met this fellow in Baltimore in that fatal, tomorrow. We shall not want the car before afternoon. And tell them to hurry the job. I have also written them to do so in that note."

"Yes, sir."

There was a pause. As David met his employer's gaze, he spoke impulsively.

"I appreciate the confidence in me that your ordering this livery implies," he began.

To Be Continued.

Nevertheless, David mused, this kind of chance was not acceptable. It was his army coat that had attracted not a If he were in livery, nobody would regard him particularly. Just now, when the thoughts of all were turned to the men overseas, any article of uniform attracted attention and interest. Yet, David reflected miserably, he had not the money to buy himself a new overcoat. He would be thankful when his reference were received. He longed for the disguise of a chauffeur's livery.

The couple on the rear seat of the car were discussing the matter that was in the chauffeur's mind.

"Mr. Jefferson looked at Smith very queerly," Desiree commented. "I wish, Dad, that he had his regular livery. I know people must think it's strange that we should let our man wear a shabby old army overcoat."

"Maybe that is true," Samuel Leighton admitted. "I noticed myself how Jefferson stood stock still and stared. Rather rude, too, I call it. Nevertheless, I may as well let Smith go down town tomorrow and be measured for his livery."

Desiree drew a sigh of satisfaction. "That's good," she approved. "I am glad you've decided on that. Per'aps, I am getting absurdly consolo of that army coat."

"I fancy you are, my dear," the pare —— ——

That came about that Samuel Leighton told David DeLaine to wait for a moment before taking his car back to the garage that night.

"Come into the library with me," he said after he had opened the front door for his daughter and had seen her on her way upstairs.

David followed him with the order that he come back at ten-forty-five. When he returned, the audience was just coming out of the hall and the crowd was so great that he had to wait for some minutes for his turn to drive up to the entrance. Once in front of the door, he stood waiting while his employer and his employer's daughter came from the building and crossed the sidewalk. With them was a young man who was chatting volubly.

Stocks Strong in New York and Boston Markets

MOTORS LED IN THE FINAL TRADING

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at the close after an active morning with most issues advancing early in the session and withstanding profit taking on large scale. Motors were leaders near the end of trading, while rubbers and tobacco also grew stronger. Covering operations contributed to the general advance. Buying orders came from all over the country. Stocks to sell at record high prices included General Motors, Pierce Arrow, Chandler, Tobacco Products, American Woolen, Cosmmon and U. S. Rubber.

U. S. Steel closed with a gain of ⅛ at 107⅝, after selling at 107¾, its highest price for the year. Also at highest Studebaker was up 6⅛, Chandler 6⅛, General Motors 7, U. S. Rubber 6⅛, Tobacco Products 6⅛, Atchison sold at par.

Trading totalled 836,600 shares; bond sales $3,672,000. Total for the week, 7,800,700 shares; bonds, $67,124,000.

The Boston market also had a strong finish. Amoskeag selling at 104½, highest record, and American Boosch Magneto was up three points. Coppers grew stronger in the last hour.

STEELS A STRONG GROUP.

Prices were higher at the start and U. S. Steel continued the feature. The awards the government contract for structure at the price asked by producers helped steels as a class. Oils were in less demand and unchanged. Royal Dutch showed the largest loss during the first hour. Fluctuations had a small range when the whole list is reviewed. Issues to sell at their highest for the year within half an hour included U. S. Rubber, Republic Steel, Midvale, Kennecott, Inspiration, Studebaker, Westinghouse and Atchison. Coppers were stronger, with Kennecott leading. Rails were quiet but firm.

BOSTON MARKET OPENED FIRM.

Firmness marked the Boston market at the outset, and it was rather strong later. Most issues showed only nominal changes, however. Oneoota were strong coppers, and there was activity for a number of low-priced mining stocks. Belvedia was weak, and New Idria sold at its year's highest, as did Island Creek. Ventura and United Fruit were higher and United Fruit advanced more than a point during the morning. There was not much business in railroad shares, nor in the newly listed stocks.

COTTON PRICES ARE STILL CLIMBING

Both the raw cotton and the cotton goods markets are rather sensational at present, the demand for material and goods being the greatest known in peace times within the memory of most men in either trade. As a result of rationing, goods prices are near and in some cases above the maximum set by the government during the war and the recovery from a 40 per cent decline which followed the signing of the armistice has been as sensational as ugly as the trade has ever known. It came so quickly that it found mills, jobbers and brokers more or less unprepared.

The advance in prices for the cotton fabrics most in demand since March 1, as compared with the government's war period maximum, is given in the following table:

PRINTS

Count	Sizes	Yards	Mar. 1	Govt. max.
56x64	25	10.50	27	4½
60x48	30	6.00	27	4½
56x44	39	6.00	19	3½

68x72	36	4.00	18	13½
80x80	30	4.20	25½	22

Advances of one, two or three cents have occurred within a few days, or even over night. In some quarters predictions of even higher prices are heard. The activity is due not only to a greatly increased domestic demand but to European and other foreign requirements for American cotton goods.

GOVERNMENT TO PAY $47 A TON FOR STEEL RAILS

The Railroad Administration has awarded contracts with six companies to furnish 360,000 tons of open hearth steel rails at $47 a ton, which was the price agreed upon by manufacturers and the Industrial Board, but which Director Gen. Hines would not accept at that time. He places orders now "under protest."

BUILD NOW BOOM PREDICTED BY ENGINEER

Contractors Receiving Numerous Inquiries, Declares Frank W. Reynolds

Build now!

Don't let the other fellow own his own home before you do.

This is the advice of Frank W. Reynolds, president of the engineering branch of Lockwood, Greene & Company, engineers, contractors and managers, with Boston offices at No. 60 Federal street.

The Lockwood, Greene Company has branch offices in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Ga., besides the office in Boston. The company has at present in operation building contracts aggregating $25,000,000.

"The south and the middle west are doing considerable building of residential and mercantile structures. New York is doing 'some' but Boston and Massachusetts are away behind," said Mr. Reynolds. "The Massachusetts man is holding back in the hope of building more cheaply than he can build now. Meantime the other countries are going ahead.

"In the middle west the people who want to build—people who necessarily refrained from building because of war time restrictions—are going to it. The middle west is very much to the good in new buildings and still keeps New York's result in a healthy wise. New York is doing considerable building, but in these sections the people are quite behind in building," Mr. Reynolds said.

BOSTON LAGGING.

The consensus of opinion of persons interested in new and improved buildings is that Boston is lagging behind. Places in Massachusetts outside Boston are building, but nothing in comparison to the volume of building which is going done elsewhere. Reports show that Connecticut is the most active.

The New England States, and indeed the Northern States in general ahead with structures, industrial and residential, there is a feeling here that there will be a considerable exodus of labor to places in which working conditions are better.

"But Boston and Massachusetts generally will soon see a big building boom," Mr. Reynolds said. "There is going to be a lot of factory building and a great deal of housing demand created by the use of a great amount of inquiries are reaching the contractors in Boston, and indications are that we are on the verge of a building boom. It is simply a matter of getting started. It seems to me that people are fast coming to realize that they cannot reasonably look for any considerable drop in prices of building materials and certainly not at once.

BUILDING BOOM PREDICTED.

"There is going to be a great deal of house building—I mean home building—all around Boston in the near future," Mr. Reynolds said. "We all know that living conditions must be improved, and it is a matter of only a short time until we begin to improve them. My advice to my friends is 'Build now' because as much as well have, his new house or his new home is the case may be, instead of waiting for it. The trend of the times is for better housing, and to obtain better housing we must pay for what we get."

Mr. Reynolds is only one of many Boston business men who foresee a "big climb" in building construction in the near future.

"Who is willing to waste five, or even three years of his life, until prices of building materials come down so that he can build a home for himself," is a question that illustrates the general opinion. One who expresses this opinion is Frank Lewis, fire prevention engineer, with offices in the Kimball building.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:
To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge, also, that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

(Signed

Paste a sheet of paper on this for additional signatures.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 24.—Samuel N. Hoag of Boston, supreme secretary of the Royal Arcanum, in the course of a plea for the returning war veterans at the national convention of the order, took occasion to commend the efforts of the Hearst newspapers for their consistent advocacy of an award of adjusted pay to every man who has served in the war.

Supreme Regent C. A. Williams of Chicago, Supreme Treasurer A. E. Robinson of St. Louis, Supreme Orator Editor William F. McConnell of New York, John J. Hogan of Boston and J. H. Gelsenheimer of Lancaster, Pa., supreme vice-regent and probably next head of the order, are pleased to know there is a country-wide sentiment to give to each returning veteran a bonus of from three to five sixty dollars bonus that now in all the nation provides.

Richard D. Crapo of Chicago introduced a resolution that the order present an engraved certificate to each of the 10,000 members who went to war. The resolution was referred to a committee.

The following questions sent to the Soldiers' Service Bureau by a naval reservist are published together with the answers, as a matter of information to attaches of the naval branches.

QUESTION—Is the "previous service" man enlisted in the Fleet Naval Reserve as a first class petty officer? He passed examinations for the rating of chief petty officer, and received an acting appointment. In six months from the date of the above appointment he will be entitled for a "permanent" appointment and received the same. The yeoman on his ship failed to send in the confirmation of appointment," and the man mentioned above is discharged as a first class petty officer instead of as a chief petty officer. Is he entitled to reinstatement as a chief petty officer?

ANSWER—He should of course receive retained pay as chief, the error being a clerical one, and he should see that the same is corrected at once.

QUESTION—Is a man enlisting in the regular army for three years does one month of active service in 1917, twelve months in 1918, and nine months in 1919. When he enlisted he was supposed to be in for three years, but now he has the right or to be in active service ninety days during the remainder of his three years. Will he have to go into active service again after the three years are up? Or, in other words, must he serve during his four-year term? ANSWER—Probably not. The War Department has decided in regard to this matter, but unofficial word from the Bureau of Navigation is to the effect that naval reservists will not be called to duty save upon the declaration of the war.

QUESTION—(a) Are the men who started for camp on the day the armistice was signed to be allowed to wear the uniform? (b) Are entitled to wear a uniform in a parade? (c) Are they entitled to join one of the organizations for instance, the American Legion? (c) Are they entitled to the bonus which the government has given?

ANSWER—(a) If such men did not reach camp they, of course, did not receive uniforms and should not wear uniforms therefore in any parade. (b) This depends on the by-laws as set forth by the Northern Department and the rules of each organization. We understand that membership is not restricted to the American Legion is an honorable discharge from service. (c) If these men received discharges from duty on forms 553 or 554-1 except cases where such forms were used to discharge alien enemies on account of such alienage. They are entitled to the $60 bonus. They should forward such discharges to the Zone Finance Officer, Lemon Building, Washington, D. C.

Still Massacring Jews Under Eyes of the American Government

Great mass meetings have been held this week in New York by the Jews to protest to our government against its inaction and apparent indifference to the continued massacring of the Jews in Poland, Rumania and the Baltic provinces.

The official records of the War and Navy Departments disclose the fact that more than 200,000 American Jews saw service in our army and navy during the war. This is 5 per cent. of the total number of American soldiers and sailors in the service.

Now, the Jewish population of the United States is only 3 per cent. of the total population of the country. Therefore, to have supplied 60 per cent. more than their quota to our army and navy during the war is a credit to the Jews which cannot be passed unnoticed. Without doubt the Jews supplied their full quota to the forces of Great Britain and France.

This contribution which the American Jews made to our victory ought to make their voice decisively heard when it is raised in protest against the persecution and slaughter of the Jews in Poland and Rumania by the very factions which the allies and our government is backing and keeping in power.

A prominent Jew who is trying to alleviate the suffering of his race in the Baltic provinces and in portions of Poland, reports that the persecutions of the Jews continue unabated wherever the reactionary interests, the great landlords and "big" business get control of a community inhabited by Jews.

It is the old, old story of the beneficiaries of privilege and exploitation trying to turn the people's attention from the oppressions which they are suffering by inciting them against the poor Jews. This was the old game of the old Russian bureaucrat and the Russian czars. When the poor Russian peasant reached the danger point of exasperation against the oppression of the Russian government, the Russian officials would start some kind of a story going among the peasants which led them to believe that in some way the Jewish population rather than the Russian government was responsible for their wretched condition, and then would follow massacres and pillaging, while Russian officialdom licked its chops and smiled.

When our American government gets through repeating its "Amens" to the imperialistic treaty, now making at Paris, to reduce a great white race to slavery for at least a generation, it may have time to hear the outcries of the Jews in Poland and Rumania and the Baltic provinces, all of whose governments we are backing.

Some time we hope that the proclamation that we are fighting for oppressed people everywhere may some time emerge from mere words into deeds.

Significant Statement by Congressman Longworth

If His Estimate of the Character of the New Republican Congress Is Correct That Party Has Begun Very Badly

Congressman Longworth makes a very significant statement concerning the new organization of the Republican Congress. Mr. Longworth is a leading Republican in Congress from Ohio. He says:

It is the most complete sort of triumph for reactionism. Even the final effort of some of us to enlarge and liberalize the Steering Committee, so as to secure representation upon it of the progressive sentiment of the West, of the States on the southern border, which substantially contributed to the Republican majority, and of labor, was defeated by the usual vote. If it had been deliberately planned to restore the conditions existing in the House ten years ago, as a result of which the Republican majority became a minority, the plan could not have been more successfully consummated.

If Mr. Longworth's estimate of the character of this new Republican Congress is correct, then the Republicans have begun very badly indeed. It is a strange throwback, an extraordinary atavism in political genealogy that the Republicans should return to Cannonism at the very first opportunity after emerging from a ten-year obscurity and impotence, brought about by the country's repudiation of Cannonism ten years ago. It is still more extraordinary that the Republican party should return to their old standpat organization in the path of the great surging forward movements in the world and the impatience which mankind is manifesting with the men who persist in "hitching their wagons to rocks in the roadside instead of hitching them to the stars."

Just now discouraged Americans are being presented with the woeful spectacle of party bankruptcy on all sides. The Democratic Congress abdicated all its powers to the executive branch of the government, denied free speech and tolerated the violation of our Bill of Rights and all our constitutional guarantees in favor of free speech, freedom of assembly and a free press, which Thomas Jefferson declared he would rather have than a government itself. The Democratic party in Congress and President Wilson himself have apparently abandoned every pretence of a program of reconstruction, although the whole world outside of America has advanced in the last few months almost a generation beyond us in the accomplishment of essential reforms which lie in the path of civilization's progress. It is a discouraging spectacle, but perhaps it may be for the best.

One of the cardinal policies of the radical left wing of the Socialist parties in Europe is not to depend upon leadership for progress and to attempt no forward movement except as the movement is a surging forward of the mass of the party itself. They have read in the history of lost causes such a constant betrayal of leadership that they are opposed to progress which depends upon leadership.

It may be well for the American people to take a leaf out of this political philosophy and policy of the Socialists and resolutely to make a political hero of no man and to trust their political cause in the hands of no men or no group of men. The tragic fate which the Progressive party met at Chicago in 1916 at the hands of the late Colonel Roosevelt, the abandonment of a progressive program by the President in his message to the Congress before leaving for Europe, struck the American people down with astonishment and dismay. The Democratic party has put its all in the hands of the President, idealizing him as the radical elements of Europe idealized him on his first visit to Europe. And now where are we, and where are the democratic masses, and where is their leader who inspired them and the war-weary masses of Europe with exquisite harmonies of speech proclaiming idealisms.

On his voiceless lips
The heroic lay is tuneless now.

After all, the blind following of leaders is not the way of democracy.

By K. C. B.

I KNOW a boy.
WHO HAD a good job.
TWO YEARS ago,
AND HIS government came.
AND TOOK him away,
FROM WHERE he worked
AND SENT him to camp.
AND KEPT him there,
FOR THREE or four months.
AND WORKED him hard.
AND A day came alone.
WHEN THEY took him away.
TO A waiting ship
AND PUT him aboard,
WITH NEVER a chance.
TO SAY good-by,
AND HE sailed the sea.
AND LEFT the ship
FOR ANOTHER camp
AND WAS drilled some more,
AND WORKED some more.
AND ANOTHER day came,
AND HE marched away.
WHERE HE heard great guns.
AND WAITED there.
TILL A fateful night,
WHEN THE order came.
THAT SENT him out,
AND INTO the night,
AS AN engine of death,
OR A victim of death.
AND THERE he stayed.
AND WINTER came,
WITH ITS Winter rains,
AND SPRINGTIME came,
AND SUMMER came,
AND ALL the time
THIS BOY I know,
WENT ON his way,
AND NEVER complained,
AND ANOTHER day came,
AND ANOTHER day,
AND THE great war ceased,
AND HE marched again,
TO A waiting ship,
THAT CARRIED him back.
TO HIS native land,
AND THE Goddess of Liberty,
SMILED ON him,
AND WHISTLES screamed,
AND THE populace cheered,
AND THEY held him up,
AS A hero returned,
AND THEN forgot,
AND A day ago,
I MET this boy,
ON A city street,
AND HE wanted to know,
IF I might know,
WHERE HE might go,
JUST TO find a job.
AND I who had cheered,
WHEN THE boy came home,
CONFESSED MY shame,
THAT I didn't know,
AND HE went away,
A HERO returned,
AND OUT of a job,
AND THAT very day,
THE WHISTLES blew,
IN JOYFUL acclaim,
THAT STILL more boys,
HAD COME home again.

I THANK you,

The Frog Pond

HIGH TIDEWATERS

Dan R. Hanna, son of the late Mark Hanna, has a Summer home in Lenox. He also has a petition before the Harbor and Land Commissioners "to construct a dam, fish screen and sluice to regulate the water flow in and over the tidewaters of Stockbridge Bowl." Which raises the question of what "tidewaters" reach up to Stockbridge Bowl, anyhow.

LOST IN THE MATRIMONIAL SHUFFLE

Mrs. Clara Baldwin Stocker, seventy-one-year-old daughter of the late "Lucky" Baldwin, testified at Los Angeles that she could not remember whether death or divorce separated her from the first of her four husbands. Between elapsed time and elapsed husbands, she could not recall the exact circumstances.

Letters to the Editor

Defends Landlords

Editor of the American:

I was sorry to see the editorial recently published relative to landlords and their alleged overcharging of rents. I feel that you must be misinformed as I have always defended your paper as having the courage of its convictions. There is never any allusion to the months' rents which the landlord loses. If a war is to be waged, I would suggest coal, the exorbitant prices, and flour, not to mention shoes. These essential commodities are taxed beyond all necessity, authorities inform us. In real estate the charges have greatly increased—for painters, carpenters, plumbers, as well as higher taxes, higher rate of interest and shorter terms, thereby requiring extra cost. All insurances have increased and some with war tax added. How can we save the little we have invested in our property, as it depreciates so rapidly it is now an unsafe proposition. Also please remember your paper has increased 100 per cent. also. I know you would be fair if you knew the facts. Loss of rents is an important consideration from sickness of tenants and other causes.

Tide Now Turns Against America

Eminent Writers Show in Tomorrow's Sunday Advertiser and American, How THE TIDE OF POPULAR SENTIMENT IN EUROPE IS NOW TURNING Against America. While Ten Months Ago We Were Proclaimed the Saviors of the World, Today We Are Belittled and Ignored by France and Great Britain and Given No Share of Credit for Having Turned Defeat Into Victory, and Wrested Peace From the Turmoil of the Great War. THE GERMANS THEMSELVES ARE MORE GENEROUS IN THE PRAISE OF AMERICAN PROWESS IN ARMS THAN ARE OUR ALLIES, as These Writers Tomorrow Show. Field Marshal Haig's Complete Report, Just Received, Shows That the BRITISH OFFICIALS COMPLETELY IGNORE the Splendid Heroism of Our Troops, and the Money and Other Help We Poured Out So Unstintedly That the World Might Be Free. WHY IS THIS? Read What These Writers—Who Speak With Authority—Have to Say About It, Tomorrow.

"SINN FEIN'S POLICY OF ALL OR NOTHING CANNOT HOLD THE FIELD LONG," declares Stephen Lucius Gwynn, Nationalist Member of Parliament from Galway City, in an exclusive article written for this paper tomorrow. "In Belfast, Mr. Devlin, still the strongest personal force in Irish politics, retains his hold unshaken, and he may yet become the nucleus for Ulster of a formidable democratic wing. Sinn Fein has swept the rest of Ireland, but this indicates rather a general resentment against the present government than any real DESIRE FOR A SEPARATE REPUBLIC." He discusses the Ulster controversy in a cool and logical way, pointing out all the difficulties that the present situation involves, and the apparent hopelessness of arriving at any solution which will please the rival factions. "In my own judgment," he says, "and it is shared by very many Nationalist soldiers, the peace conference, or THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS COULD BRING TO A SOLUTION of this difficulty the dignity, the authority and the detachment needed for an acceptable tribunal. It is in Great Britain's interest to seek that help; but a false pride prompts refusal to submit what is called a domestic question to alien arbitrament. Whether America can usefully intervene, as a friend in counsel," he concludes, "it is for Americans to determine; but if America cannot help, I see nothing ahead but chaotic ferment, the breeding-ground for a political unrest which will poison all the relations between Great Britain and America, and may at no very distant time EMBROIL THE WHOLE ENGLISH-SPEAKING WORLD."

"If war had wrought nothing else for mankind, than the TRIUMPH OF LABOR AT THE PEACE CONFERENCE, that alone would be enough to brighten the shadows," declares CHARLES EDWARD RUSSELL, continuing his splendid comprehensive labor series tomorrow. "With the adoption of Labor's program by the Peace Conference, feudalism has forever been abolished. NO LONGER CAN LABOR BE BOUGHT AND SOLD; but it is accepted as A SOCIAL SERVICE. To form trade unions is recognized as the right of workingmen; wages must henceforth be adequate to a reasonable standard of life; eight hours is set as the limit of a day's work; one full day of rest in seven is provided; childhood will be protected—there will be no more child labor; adequate inspection will hereafter make working conditions safe and sanitary; and women will receive equal pay for equal work. Standing upon this advantage ground, Labor can now with increased hope and confidence DEMAND THE NEXT GREAT REFORMS—better education for workers' children; a larger share in the management of industry; and a larger share in its profits."

SENATOR WILLIAM E. BORAH PROTESTS AGAINST "EXTENDING OUR FRONTIER TO THE RHINE," through the proposed pact with France, which he says would surely plunge us into future wars. "It leaves us bound to resist an invasion of French territory bounding the Rhine, just as we would resist the invasion of the United States by Mexican forces. There is NO LEAGUE OF PEACE in this. It is a league for war; and the very proposal of the pact is an admission on the part of its authors that the League of Nations is a FAILURE AT THE OUTSET. They advocate the League as a panacea for war; yet UNDER ITS COVER, the United States, England and France propose to provide A BALANCE OF POWER." Senator Borah also finds in the Saar Valley another bone of contention from which future wars will arise; and otherwise takes vigorous issue with the actions of the Peace Conference.

How VEDRINES, the famous French Ace, RAN A "BUS" FOR SPIES, is thrillingly related for the first time, by an officer in the British Air Force. "The hazards were tremendous," says Vedrines of his exploits, "but when they are undertaken for LA BELLE FRANCE, I count them as nothing."

Mrs. EMMA PAGET continues her amazing recital of hair-breadth escapes as a spy upon spies in the late war.

Listen, Girls! and you shall hear of the matrimonial catch of all the year! The future Duke of Marlboro is coming a-hunting of a wife! Not even the news that the Prince of Wales is coming to America, has made such a stir as that. A charming lad he is, too. Much pleasant gossip of this social event, tomorrow.

Boston society girls found the lure of Love in hospitals, and many real romances have blossomed in our midst as a result of work undertaken in clinic, laboratory and hospital wards.

"He dined at the Waldorf." That might be said of many folk—but not often of a PRIZE BULL. But once upon a time one did! His name is "Financial Sensation," and he was such a sensation at the recent Milk Show in New York, that 500 cattle raisers and milk producers tendered him a real banquet—at the Waldorf, and he dined with them as guest of honor!

You can't have "mixed feelings"—Science says so. The novelists have it all wrong.

That great romance of Ancient Egypt—"Moon of Israel," by Rider Haggard, continues to grow in interest.

Here's a funny bit of news: Alphonse and Gaston are back from France! They came all the way to have a lemonade with Mr. Dubb. (Poor Mr. Dubb!) "Father" tries his luck at making shadow pictures, too. (Father never did have any luck at anything.) And, of course, those other two excellent pages, "As the Funmakers See the News," and "The Latest and Best in the World of Wit."

Lots of good things, tomorrow!
